SPLENDID CONVENTION

THAT OF CHRISTIAN CHURCHES WHICH MET IN SEDALIA SATURDAY.

SOME 1,200 DELEGATES PRESENT

A Masterful Address by the Rev. Irving S. Chenoweth, of St. Louis, Who Chose for His Subject, "The Old and the New."

About twelve hundred delegates were in attendance at the First Christian church Saturday when the seventieth annual convention of the Missouri Christian Missionary society, including the C. W. B. M., the Y. P. S. C. E. and the State Bible school, was called to order, every section of the state being represented.

The program of the Christian Women's Board of Missions Saturday, as printed in Friday's Democrat-Sentinel, was carried out, with the exception of the address of Jasper T. Moses on "The Outlook in Mexico," that gentleman not being present.

At 9 o'clock Mrs. R. B. Helsee, of Fayette, conducted devotional services, after which the president's address was delivered by Mrs. H. A. Denton, of Maryville.

Reports were made by the corresponding secretary, treasurer and centennial secretary, and also by the committees on nominations, future work and ways and means, at the conclusion of which Mrs. J. L. Moore and Mrs. A. M. Fuller made reports of field work.

At 11 o'clock Mrs. M. Wickizer, of Kirksville, delivered an interesting address, her subject being "About My Father's Business." Pledges for special work followed, after which adjournment was had for dinner.

At 1:45 o'clock Mrs. F. H. Miller, of Appleton City, conducted devotional services, and for the remainder of the afternoon the program was as follows:

Symposiums on practical propositions by district managers.

(a) The district manager, Mrs. Q. T. Hull, Clarence.

(b) The Country Church Auxiliary, Miss Mary Hord, Gower.

(c) The County Manager, Mrs. Nell H. Glenn, Webb City.

(d) Problems of the Organizer, Miss Luelal Duke, Lamonte.

(e) Federation in Cities, Mrs. G. B. Longan, Kansas City.

(f) Unknown Missouri, Mrs. J. F. Raney, Dexter.

3:20. Report of Y. P. department, Miss LaDela Walker, St. Louis.

3:40. Address, "The Future of Our Children," Irving S. Chenoweth, St. Louis.

4:05. The Quiet Hour, Mrs. G. M. Walker, Fayette.

4:20. Adjournment.

The Christian Woman's Board of Missions will hold its closing session at the First Baptist church at 8 o'clock Monday morning, when Miss Sennie Bengese, of Paris, will hold what is known as the workers' conference.

Last evening was the Christian Endeavor period, there being a praise service at 7:30 o'clock, followed by the state superintendent's report and the annual address of the society, which was delivered by John L. Brandt, of St. Louis.

Today will be what is known as Christian Missionary convention period, the program being as follows:

Leader of Song, W. E. M. Hackelman, of Indianapolis.

10:30 a. m. Sermon, Levi Marshall, Hannibal.

3:00 p. m. Communion service at new Sedalia theater, J. P. Pinkerton presiding.

Prayer and praise service, H G. Bennett, Kansas City.

Sermon, W. F. Turner, Joplin.

Offering for ministerial relief.

7:00 p. m. Endeavor Hour, H. A. Denton, Maryville.

8:00 p. m. Sacred selection, Second Regiment band.

8:20 p. m. Sermon, W. W. Burks, Nevada.

Hon. Champ Clark, of Bowling Green, Mo., will deliver an address Monday night.

One of the best addresses of Saturday was that of Rev. Irving S. Chenoweth, of St. Louis, which the Democrat-Sentinel deems worthy of printing verbatim, as follows:

"She who rocks the cradle rules the world." "The child is father of the man," and such sayings have been household proverbs in nearly every community. They show that the people have long seen the important place that the child holds—that from the ranks of children today come the leaders tomorrow. Yet in the thought of government makers, in the minds of philanthropists and christian workers, has the child received the attention and place due him?

In the fifty-eight juvenile reformatories of the United States, according to the eleventh census of 1890, there were 14,846 inmates, of which 3,311 were girls. The average for both sexes is 14¼ years. The lowest aver-

WILL DISSOLVE DOUMA

CZAR DETERMINED TO HAVE HIS WAY WITH THE HOUSE OF PARLIAMENT.

CAPITAL CITY AN ARMED CAMP

Troops Are Being Rushed to St. Petersburg From All Directions, Ready to Enforce Orders of Emperor.

St. Petersburg, June 15.—The second Russian parliament, the Associated Press is informed on ministerial authority, will be dissolved by an imperial edict which will be promulgated so soon as the lower house acts on Premier Stoljpin's ultimation. The possibility of the house granting the government's demand for a suspension of the fifty- five social democrats, members of the parliament who are charged with conspiring against the present regime, is not being considered by either side.

The parliamentary committee which has been examining the indictment of the fifty-five social democrat members has decided that it is impossible to review all the evidence today and will ask the house to give until Monday to report.

The city has again assumed the appearance of an armed camp. The guard regiments last night left their summer camp at Krasnoye-Selo for St. Petersburg, and throughout the night detachments of infantry and cavalry have been arriving here. The garrison of St. Petersburg is now double its ordinary strength, the guard regiments having been replaced by regiments of the line when the former went into camp.

Long lines of transport wagons with camp equippage, etc., trundled through the main streets all morning, interspersed with occasional detachments of cavalry and infantry marching to their quarters. Otherwise the center of the city bore its usual appearance, but the industrial sections literally bristled with troops.

All the raiload stations were watched by secret police in order to prevent the escape of the social democrat deputies and revolutionary agitators, among whom a general exodus is expected to begin so soon as parliament is dissolved.

A FAMOUS LECTURER

Will Be in Sedalia July 6 and Should Have Full House.

No one should fail to attend the free lecture July 6 by Judge Samuel R. Artman, the able jurist, of Lebanon, Ind., whose famous decision that "To license a saloon is unconstitutional" has attracted national attention. Only three cities in Missouri were lucky enough to secure him—St. Louis, Kansas City and Sedalia. His lecture on "The Unconstitutionality of Saloon Licenses" never fails to draw overflowing crowds. The largest building procurable will be secured and announced later. All free.

Secretary Taft Much Better.

St. Paul, Minn., June 15.—Secretary Taft was much better today. He had a good night's rest last night for the first time in three weeks. He was well enough to continue his trip west this morning, but was persuaded to rest here.

THE DEATH OF PIONEER

C. H. LUDEMANN, LONG A RESIDENT OF SEDALIA, PASSES AWAY.

HE WAS EIGHTY YEARS OF AGE

Leaves a Record of a Long and Useful Life and Earnest Devotion to Duty—Was Prominent Church Worker.

C. H. Ludemann, a pioneer resident of Sedalia, died of general debility after a lingering illness of a month, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Minnie Schneider, at Quincy and Wilkerson avenue, at 6 o'clock Saturday morning, aged 80 years.

Born at Ottersburg, Hanover, Germany, on February 23, 1827, Mr. Ludemann was married in the old country to Miss Marie Beuchen in 1852. In the same year he and his wife came to America, settling at Walhalla, S. C., where he remained until May 11, 1866, when, accompanied by his wife and family, he came to Sedalia, where he has resided continuously since.

In early youth he learned the painting and contractor's business and followed that line throughout his entire life, up to five years ago, when old age compelled him to retire.

In early youth he became affiliated with the German Evangelical church and remained steadfast in that faith up to the time of his death. He was one of the church's foremost workers and took the most active part in the building of the German Emmanuel Evangelical church in this city, and to his efforts is due the edifice that now stands at Fourth and Vermont avenue.

Mr. Ludemann's wife died thirteen years ago, and of the seven children born of the union only five are now living, as follows: John D., of Kansas City; H. H., Mrs. Minnie Schneider, F. L. and W. G. Ludemann, all of Sedalia.

The funeral services will be held at the German Evangelical church at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Rev. Otto Press, the pastor, will officiate, assisted by Rev. F. Umbeck, of California, Mo.

Burial will be made in the city cemetery and the following will serve as pallbearers: Adolph Riecke, Charles Walch, Henry Pehling, J. G. Schmid, Daniel Goetze and J. B. Richter.

Mr. Ludemann was a man whose word was as good as his bond. His friends are numbered by hundreds, and many indeed there are who can attest to his acts of kindness and charity whenever his fellow man needed assistance.

To the bereaved relatives, the Democrat-Sentinel extends its sympathy.

AT THE GOLF LINKS

Mrs. C. E. Yeater Won at the Tournament Saturday.

Mrs. C. E. Yeater won the clock golf tournament at the Country club Saturday afternoon. The following ladies participated: Miss Hawkins, Mrs. E. F. Farley, Mrs. C. E. Yeater, Mrs. Orville Barnett, Mrs. T. J. Sturges, Miss Longan, Mrs. W. H. Reynolds and Miss Lucile Hill. The prize was a red dot golf ball. It is hoped that this will be a regular Saturday contest between the lady golfers of the club.

In the Scotch two ball tournament, also played on Saturday, the Flake team won. This team was composed of the following players: H. R. Finke, T. J. Sturges, O. M. Barnett, W. J. Maltby, J. S. Rogers and Newton Cannon. Each member of the winning team received a red dot golf ball.

Many had lunch on the club house veranda and there was a party and dance in the evening.

WED MONDAY EVENING

Mr. Richard Hulland, of Kansas City, and Miss Nina McLaughlin.

Mr. Richard Hulland, son of Mrs. Clara Hulland, of Kansas City, and Miss Nina McLaughlin, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. McLaughlin, will be united in holy bans of matrimony at the home of the bride's parents, 404 North Prospect avenue, at 8:30 o'clock Monday evening, Rev. S. S. Martin officiating.

Miss Ruth Martin will play the wedding march, and Miss Alice Wells will serve as bridesmair, while Mr. Edward McLaughlin, brother of the bride, will act as best man.

Outside of immediate relatives there will be very few guests. The bridal couple leave Tuesday morning for Kansas City to reside.

Mr Hulland holds a good position with the J. W. Jenkins music house at Kansas City, and is worthy in every respect of the young lady whose heart he has won.

Miss McLaughlin is an accomplished and refined young lady, popular with every acquaintance, and a legion of friends will join the Democrat-Sentinel in extending hearty congratulations.

MAJOR BECK TALKS BACK

DON'T UNDERSTAND ATTITUDE OF COUNCILMEN DE JARNETTE AND WINNER.

PARK BOARD VERY HARMONIOUS

Member Since Its Organization and Is Surprised and Mortified at the "Ouster" Proceedings—Strict Integrity Guiding Star.

To the Democrat-Sentinel.

As a member of the park board I was greatly surprised and mortified that in the session of the city council over a week ago, Alderman DeJarnette made charges against the park board, that the same was derelict in its duty by not communicating its records to the city council.

He had better see the ordinance creating the park a city institution.

Since nine years ago, when the board was organized, I have been all the time a member of it, and such reports were never made by the park board, but all our bills were approved by us and sent to the city council.

Without referring Mr. DeJarnette's resolution to a committee for investigation, which is the proper way, another resolution was offered by Mr. Winner to instruct the city attorney to draw up an ordinance to abolish the park board.

What reason the two named councilmen had for their actions I do not know. The whole matter was so sudden that no time was given the park board to resign, but as one city paper said, they were to be "ousted."

I was a member of the first city council we had, in 1864, also treasurer of the city schools, whose founder I was, in 1866, much to my business loss, being boycotted by many on account of it. I handled over $30,000 of the city's money, building the first school houses, south and north of the railroad, the first Broadway building being one of them, also the school for colored children. But there never was or has been the least intimation aganst my actions.

Strict integrity in public and private life has been my guiding star, and fathfully and cheerfully I have followed it.

I have never been connected with a more harmonious body of men than that comprising the park board, but I mention two men who especially gave good service to the park—Messrs. Charles Ernst and Harvey Keene.

I think I voice the sentiment of the park bord when I say the whole matter is left to the good judgment of the city council.

I might add that the earnings of the park last year were $1,300.

WILLIAM BECK.

Frank Holland will tomorrow finish the painting of the dwelling of Mrs. Rose Doherty, 610 West Fourth street, the appearance of which has been greatly improved by his excellent workmanship.

THE SHOPS' STATEMENT

MONUMENTAL TASK FINALLY COMPLETED BY C. B. WALLACE FRIDAY NIGHT.

EVERY DETAIL IS NOW PRESENTED

Statement Complete Would Require Many Columns of the Democrat-Sentinel and Only Synopsis Is Here Given.

After two months' work at odd times in his leisure Chas. B. Wallace, of the Third National bank, about 10 o'clock Friday night completed his work upon the statement of the receipts and expenses incidental to the securing of the $1,000,000 shops of the Missouri Pacific Railway Co., for the location of which the people of Sedalia donated the site and $200,000 in cash.

The statement comprises eighteen pages of names, averaging fifty names to the page, upon which is given the name of each subscriber, the amount of his subscription, the amount that it was discounted for cash, the sum paid and the sum deliquent, making one column for the subscribers and four columns of figures for each of the eighteen pages. To present this list entire in the Democrat-Sentinel this morning is impossible, but it is likely the committee in charge will have it printed later and distributed gratuitously.

In order that the public may have a thorough understanding of the work of the committee that handled the funds, the Democrat-Sentinel prints the articles of agreement that were entered into between the banks of the city and the Sedalia Trust company and the committee as follows:

Articles of Agreement.

This agreement made and entered into this 27th day of January, 1904, by and between the Citizens' National bank, the Sedalia National bank, the Third National bank and the Sedalia Trust Company, all of Sedalia, Missouri, witnesseth as follows:

1. The said banks and trust company hereby agree to loan J. L. Babcock, trustee, the amount necessary to add to the cash and good checks on hand to make $188,000, so as to enable the said J. L. Babcock, trustee, to pay such amount at the time of signing a contract with the Missouri Pacific Railway company for the location of its general shops at or near Sedalia, Mo.

2. Such loan shall be made with all the unpaid shop subscription notes in the hands of W. H. Powell, cashier of one of said banks, pledged with a first lien thereon as collateral to secure the payment thereof.

3. For such loan each bank shall advance two-sevenths thereof and the said trust company shall advance one-seventh thereof, and such collateral subscription notes shall be held for the joint and equal benefit of said banks and trust company in the above pro rata proportions.

4. The cashier holding said collateral subscription notes shall distribute the same to the respective banks and trust company at which on the face thereof they may be respectively payable, and on the first of each month the collections thereon shall be paid to said banks and trust company in the above pro rata proportions.

5. Said banks and trust company shall be paid six per cent interest on said loan until the same is repaid and on the first of each month interest shall be first respectively paid to them out of collections and the balance paid on the principal.

6. This agreement shall become effective whenever the Citizens' executive committee and W. L. Porter shall attach below this agreement their written assent to the conditions of this article, which are as follows. namely:

1st. Any real estate company formed to take the options heretofore secured for the McVey and other lands adjacent to the proposed Missouri Pacific shop site, shall substitute its negotiable promissory notes for the then unpaid notes as aforesaid of said J. L. Babcock, trustee, to be secured by the same collateral.

2nd. After paying said loan for the balance as aforesaid of said $188,000, said banks and trust company shall and collect the same, and out of the proceeds thereof shall repay to said real estate company the amount it may actually expend in paying for the shop lands to be conveyed by said real estate company to said railway company, it being distinctly and expressly understood that said real estate company shall carry out the contract with said railway company and convey to it said shop lands, and shall be paid for the McVey lands north of the railroad at the rate of ninety dollars per acre.

3rd. After said real estate company shall be repaid the amount actually paid by it for said shop site, the said banks and trust company shall then pay all amounts collected in excess thereof to said J. L. Babcock, trustee, to be prorated back by still retain said subscription notes

AN "AD" GOT HIM A WIFE

IT WAS PRINTED IN THE DEMOCRAT SENTINEL ON THE 15TH OF MARCH.

MANY ANSWERS WERE RECEIVED

Thus It Was That on Last Thursday Mr. Joseph Bradbury, of Beaman, and Dora Ann Savage Were Married Here.

The marriage on Thursday last of Joseph Bradbury, of Beaman, and Dora Savage, was the happy finale of the use of printer's ink, and demonstrates the fact that the use of the columns of the Democrat-Sentinel will bring desired results in all cases.

Mr. Joseph Bradbury was for many years the proprietor of a general merchandise store "down behind" Beaman, on the north bank of Muddy creek, but which he closed out some three years ago and built a cozy home on a farm he owned some four miles northeast of Beaman, where he and his life partner retired to spend the remaining portion of their life.

Death, however, entered the home, and last fall claimed the good wife. Mr. Bradbury was lonely and felt the loss of his companion. Last spring he began looking around for some one to take her place.

He came to Sedalia and to a friend recited his lonely condition, and implored the friend's assistance in filling the vacant chair. The friend advised placing an "ad" in the Democrat-Sentinel, and on March 15 the following was inserted in this paper:

"Wanted—A well situated farmer (widower) desires to correspond with some respectable lady, aged between 40 and 60 years, as housekeeper, or if satisfactory, to marriage. Address B., care Democrat-Sentinel office."

Soon a number of letters, all in feminine handwriting, were received at the business department of the paper, addressed to "B.," and were forwarded to Mr. Bradbury, rural route No. 1, Beaman.

One was answered by Mr. Bradbury, after which a meeting of the parties was arranged and the marriage by Justice Clark on Thursday last was the result, thus again demonstrating the fact that if you want a thing just state your wants in the columns of the Democrat-Sentinel, and you will surely be made happy

LOOKS BAD FOR DEFENCE

EVIDENCE BROUGHT OUT SATURDAY TENDS TO CONFIRM ORCHARD'S TESTIMONY.

ADAMS' TELEGRAM INTRODUCED

Jack Simpkins Received Several Remittances From the Defendant—Ex-Governor Peabody and Daughter Give Evidence.

Boise, Idaho, June 15.—The prosecution in the Steunenberg murder case won its fight for the admission of the contents of the telegram Steve Adams sent from Odgen to the defendant, Haywood, at Denver in June, 1903, and Detective Pender, of Ogden, was permitted to testify to the contents this morning. The message was an appeal from Adams to Haywood for money.

The state then produced and secured the admission of six drafts sent by Haywood to Jack Simpkins at various times in 1904, 1905 and 1906.

One was sent just before and one just after the Steunenberg murder, and the purpose for which they were introduced was to show the relations of Haywood and Simpkins, who aided Harry Orchard in the first attempt to kill Steunenberg.

The state next produced the fragments of the pistol and device by which the infernal machine placed in the Vindicator mine was set off and this led to a general digression into the whole story of the Cripple Creek strike of 1903-4, in which the defense sought to show violence and incitement to violence by agents and officers of the Mine Owners' association and high handed injustice by the militia after martial law was declared.

Then the play went back to the Peabody bomb to prove its recovery from the Caeur d'Alene river. Ex-Governor Peabdy and Miss Peabody, who had seats within the rail, intently watched the production of the bomb casing which so long held tragedy for them.

Charles T. Roach, a plumber, testified that he made the casing of what is known as the "Peabody bomb." It was made to order. He identified the bomb casing, examining it carefully. He said he did not think he could identify the person who ordered it and he did not know Orchard.

Miss Cora May Peabody, daughter of ex-Governor Peabody, was one of the last witnesses at the morning session. She testified to seeing two men near her carriage during her father's term of office. Her mother and sister were with her. Orchard testified that one night he waited to shoot the governor, but ladies got out of the carriage.

Mr. Richardson cross-examined Miss Peabody closely. She was extremely nervous, but answered every question without contradiction. Richardson's questions directed to an effort to show that the witness was endeavoring to bolster up Orchard's testimony. Ex-Governor Peabody was the last witness. He saw Orchard at Canon City at the time Orchard said that he went there for the purpose of killing the governor.

A DELIGHTFUL VISIT

Miss R. E. Shaeffer Is Having It Back in Old Virginia.

Miss R. E. Shaeffer, who is connected with the Missouri Bankers' association, has been spending her summer vacation in Virginia. She writes her family and friends that she is having a most charming visit, and finds old Virginia hospitality all that it has been represented to her since childhood.

She was in Richmond during the great Confederate reunion and has visited Norfolk, Portsmouth, the Jamestown exposition, Newport News, Old Point Comfort, Fortress Monroe, and had the pleasure of inspecting one of Uncle Sam's big battleships, and found the jolly tars a polite set of fellows. At present she is in Washington, D. C.

END OF SMALLPOX DANGER.

It can be announced with perfect truthfulness that all danger of smallpox has gone from Sedalia, thanks to the methods recommended by the state board of health and put into effect by the city authorities.

The Democrat-Sentinel makes this announcement with much pleasure, and trusts that with the experience gained through the recent visitation it will never again find it necessary to publish to the world the prevalence of the disease, in order that proper means for the safeguarding of the public may be put in force.

IRISH RETALIATE.

As was to be expected the Irish Nationalists have turned against the government on its failure to introduce a more liberal home rule bill than the one which met with such miserable failure. The opposition is to be wielded not only in the house of commons in all legislative matters, but it is to be carried into the constituencies of England at the next bye-elections. At a meeting of the Irish party John Redmond's persistent opinion that the only way to win home rule is by forcing a militant campaign upon England was adopted. This means that conciliation is to be abandoned and that the fight for modified self government is to be carried into the land of the enemy.

Just what effect this movement against the Liberal ministry will have on its tenure of office is hard to say, but it involves possibilities of grave danger to the government. Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman and his top-heavy majority in parliament have not met the expectations of the country either in regard to general policy or legislation enacted and attempted. In some respects it has been badly discredited. Its defeat on the education issue was a severe blow to the government's prestige both in and out of the house of commons, and its threat of disciplining or abolishing the house of lords for holding up the measure without any attempt at fulfillment was another misfortune which had not only caused a reaction against the party, but actually strengthened the upper branch of parliament with the people. The manner in which the ministry fell down in its effort to solve the Irish question, after it had promised much and led Ireland to expect more, has proven perhaps the biggest blunder of the session, and is likely to cause a reaction against it and want of public confidence.

Conservatives are already claiming that an appeal to the country would result in turning out the government by a large majority, and they declare that the next bye-elections will show a material reduction in Liberal seats. With the Irish strength of nearly one hundred votes massed against it the government could not afford to lose many members. Should intermediate elections go against it there would be great danger of defeat on some material legislative policy and resignation of the cabinet The inability of Liberals to keep themselves in power after attaining it has been one of the conspicuous evidences of their political incapacity.

BATTLE WITH THE COAL TRUST.

The suit of the government at Philadelphia to break up the hard coal trust has been expected for some time as a result of the investigation conducted some months ago and does not, therefore, occasion a stir. The guilt of the railroad companies which compose the so-called anthracite monopoly has been so strongly disclosed through numerous incidents and inquiries that the public takes it for granted the government will have no trouble in convicting it and forcing its dissolution. As a matter of legal formality this outcome of the suit is practically assured. The hard coal combine is probably the most complete monopoly that exists in this country. Mined, transported and marketed by a clique of capitalists who own a half dozen or more railroads of exclusive entrance to the coal fields, the price and supply of the necessity is regulated absolutely and in a manner that has proven a source of hardship upon all consumers who use this kind of fuel. To give a pretense of separation of interests and to evade the interdiction against consolidation of transportation and industrial enterprises, what for all practical purposes are fictitious mining companies have been organized. Each one is owned and operated by precisely the same men who own and operate the railroad which carries the product to market, so that the identity of proprietorship is complete and constitutes a perfect monopoly.

It is the purpose of the government to break up the connection between the railroad and mining companies and compel those who own them to part with one or the other. By vigorous enforcement of the Sherman anti trust law it is then hoped that the combination which limits production and establishes prices will be broken up and competition injected into the anthracite industry. But it remains to be seen whether a judgment against the coal trust will accomplish the desired results. The meat trust has succeeded pretty well in maintaining extortionate prices and manipulating the supply notwithstanding injunctions, dissolutions and fines, and it is a far more difficult combination to keep up than the anthracite monopoly.

Undoubtedly evasion will be attempted if an adverse decision is rendered and in the meantime we may expect a legal battle of no mean proportions.

After all it is just as well that Senator Morgan did not live to see the completion of the Panama canal. He died in the happiness that it would be a failure, and had he been spared he might have been disappointed.

A girl at Pittsburg got out of bed, took a slat from her bed and smashed a mouse that was annoying her. You don't have to believe it unless you want to.

Now that Mr. Roosevelt has taken up the role of critic, perhaps it would be well for Mr. Cleveland to look over his revises when he writes anything on fishing.

Among other things, California now comes forward with the meanest man in the country. A bridegroom of that state is forcing his bride to eat all the biscuits she bakes.

Cartoonist Nast's famous ring grafters pointing to each other, would very well apply to the present situation in San Francisco.

"Ohio Democrats Hopeful," says a headline in the Baltimore Sun. It has been a long time since they were pieful, however.

Pending the decision whether to prosecute Harriman, it is noticeable that he has stopped talking for publication.

The railroad and oil magnates and the civic grafters must wonder where they get the grand juries.

A SEDALIA CHAUTAUQUA

THE QUEEN OF THE PRAIRIES HAS OPPORTUNITY TO GET THE ATTRACTION.

WOULD BE TWO WEEKS SESSION

If Sedalia Secures the Assembly it Will Open on July 18th and Continue for Fourteen Consecutive Days.

A Chautauqua for Sedalia is one of the probabilities of the near future. A number of our citizens who are interested in the work have been in communication with Mr. F. W. Bartell, of Siloam Springs, Ark., general manager of the Associated Chautauquas, which operates sixteen Chautauquas in Missouri, Kansas, Arkansas and Oklahoma, relative to the establishment of a Chautauqa in Sedalia.

No guarantee is asked and our people will not be asked to contribute to a deficit should one occur. All the association asks is that 500 season tickets shall be subscribed for in advance at the uniform price of $2.00 each. These subscriptions are usually made by public spirited citizens taking them in blocks of from 5 to 25 each. The names of the season ticket, together with the number of season tickets each one has for sale, is prominently advertised, so that all purchasers are referred direct to the subscribers for their season tickets.

Those who buy season tickets will get to take in all of the big attractions of the Chautauqua at an average cost of about 5c each. The Chautauqua management sells no season tickets until the subscribers shall have disposed of all of theirs. The price of tickets will be advanced to $2.50 five days previous to the opening of the Chautauqua. This will create an advanced demand that will absorb all of the subscription tickets.

The season ticket fund is collected and held in trust for the Chautauqua maagement by some responsible local party, who pays it to the Chautauqua 1-10th each day, provided the attractions are given.

MRS. KEYSER'S LUNCHEON

Entertained Young Girl Friends in Honor of Miss Stanley.

Of the many delightful entertainments given during the past few weeks in honor of Miss Stanley, one of Sedalia's June brides, none were more dainty and charming than a luncheon of which Mrs. Keyser was hostess Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Keyser, herself but a recent bride, had as her guests beside Miss Stanley, Misses Susan Thomson, Besse Doyle, Lucile Brown, of Sedalia, and Miss Nellie White, of Weatherford, Texas, all young girl friends of both the honor guest and the hostess.

Mrs Keyser's home was beautifully decorated with a profusion of flowers, among which deep red rambler roses predominated.

The luncheon table was most artistically arranged with rare English linen, embroidered and hemstitched in rose design, many rich pieces of cut glass and exquisite china.

The delicious menu consisted of fruit cocktail served in silver bouillon cups; tomato puree; fried chicken, brandied peaches, peas in crust cups, heart shaped beaten buscuit, stuffed potatoes; stuffed tomatoes with crackers; ice cream in square shapes, the white centered by a red heart, individual cakes containing a ring, a thimble and a penny. Toasts followed, after which the hostess served coffee together with dainty after dinner wafers.

THE COLORED TEACHERS

A Highly Successful Institute Conducted Here.

The institute for colored teachers, including the counties Pettis, Benton, Bates, Cass, Henry, St. Clair, Moniteau and Morgan, which opened Monday morning, June 3, 1907, in the Lincoln High school building, closed Friday, June 14, after an interesting session of ten days.

Prof. Christopher C. Hubbard, the proficient principal of Lincoln High school,, conducted the institute and had assisting him Prof. H. L Billups, teacher of law and philosophy, Wiley University, Marshall, Texas, and Editor W. H. Houston, of the Sedalia Weekly Conservator.

This has been the most successful colored teachers' institute held in Pettis county and much good has been derived. There has been an excellent attendance on the part of the teachers.

Along with the regular program, lectures have been given by Dr. J. M. Harris, Lawyer H. G. Phillips, Prof. Gass, of the Broadway school; County Superintendent T. R. Luckett, Superintendent. G. V. Buchanan and Prof. H. L. Billups.

Teachers from all parts of the state have been in attendance.

Mrs. Flower at Home.

Mrs. C. W. Flower, who has been confined to the Maywood hospital for the past four months, was so far improved last evening that she was removed to her home. Mr. Flower, who has been at the same istitution, was at his desk yesterday for the first time in several weeks.

age of both sexes is found in the south central states for children of foreign parents and is 12½ years, and the highest in the south Atlantic states for children of unknown nativity, where it is 16 years. Most of these institutions receive offenders from 5 to 25. Of these ninety are 7 years of age, 202 8 years, 338 9 years, 582 10 years, 1,371 12 years and 2,217 15 years of age.

In Germany there was in a certain period an increase of 20 per cent in all crimes, but in juvenile crimes of 32 per cent, 12 per cent more than the whole amount of crime. In 1816, when the population of London was under a million and a half, there were 3,000 under 20 years of age in prison, half of these under 17, and some 9 or 10 years of age. One thousand of them were convicted of felonies. The following are items taken from newspaper clippings in the year 1905:

Five thousand boys arrested last year in one city. Four thousand out of 16,000 arrests last year were boys under 20. Bandits caught mere boys. Boy burglars getting common. Thieving increasing among children.

Many are familiar with the following gangs: The Van Wormer boys, of New York; the Biddles, of Pennsylvania; Carbarn murderers of Illinois; the Collinses of Missouri; boy murderers of Nebraska, and others. Jacob A. Riis, in his "How the Other Half Lives," tels of the numerous gangs in the east side of New York City, and how they become to be dreaded by all about them. Girls form compacts with other girls not to endure certain things, or often to die together. These gangs are formed under the direction of a leader that has absolute control and who is always the hardest to capture or reform.

In the year 1852 in England forty-five boys were imprisoned in one county, four years later fifty-three, but the two leaders were caught and the next year only fourteen were imprisoned. The gangs were broken up.

When these boy offenders were caught they were taken with a miscellaneous lot of criminals to trial. The judge had the law and administered justice, regardles of any sense of humanity or leniency. Very little inquiry was made concerning the environment of home life of a child, or as to whether this was the first offense, and almost no thought was taken for his future.

Until reformatories were introduc- jail or prison, and even since that time he awaited the grand jury in the city or county jail among the adult prisoners. He came out with new stories of crime and an ambition for dark deeds of which he had never dreamed before. He follows the criminals about, devouring their rehearsed he had to serve his sentence in sal of the worst crimes, all the while corrupting his young life, in the time of character forming.

In New Jersey, several years ago, fellow inmates of the same cell were a self-confessed wife murderer and a boy of 11 years, arrested for truancy from school. Across the aisle from their cell were two women of the lowest character. This was under the old administering of justice. If a child had sinned he must suffer as a man. The way to make him better was to shut him away from some misdeed, to punish him, allowing his mind at the same time to be filled with things a hundred times more vile. His evil nature was to be bound down so it could not grow, very much as the foot of the Chienese child is bound.

In the middle of the last century reformatories were introduced. They lessened crime and helpd the children to better lives by keeping them from the baneful influence of association with other criminals. Yet they had the old ideals, the old methods. There were the barred windows, the guards day and night, the uniforms and the chained feet. The children were tried as before, merely from the sense of justice, right along with the grown people. The child dreaded the law—it was against him, the judge would not look at his side. Then in the reformatory he was being punished, that was all he could see. When he came out the stigma of it followed him, he couldn't get away from it, and sometimes it made him desperate.

In 1869 Massachusetts inaugurated a new plan. She saw that the spirit of the old was not right. A children's court was organized, when the judge heard the children's cases at a different time from the adults. They didn't have the association of the older offenders as heretofore, and the court was made more informal. A new officer was created, that of probation officer. When a child came who had not been arrested before and who had a decent home, and promised to do better he was given a period of probation, during which time he was to report to and be visited by the probation officer at regular intervals. If he was a dependent and ought to be supported by the state some proper care was taken, a home was found for him or he was sent to the reformatory, and no children were placed in jail with adults.

A new principle had come—that of helping rather than punishing. In this state it is reported that there has been a falling off of 75 per cent in crime since this children's court was established. The court is to determine whether or not it is safe for society to give the delinquent another chance, and must have in mind:

1. The welfare and interests of the child, as to whether he is safe in his own home, or should be sent to another.

2. The welfare of the community, as to whether the child can be trusted and will not be of harm to the neighborhood or city.

3. Temporary care of the child. This means some other building or room than that in which adult prisoners are held. It encourages improvement of the court equipment.

4. Supervision of the child after the action of the court, which consists of the visits of the probation officer, and leads to the cleaning up of the homes and uplifting of parents through the child. Also the investigation and improvement of the various homes and reformatories to which delinquent children shall be sent.

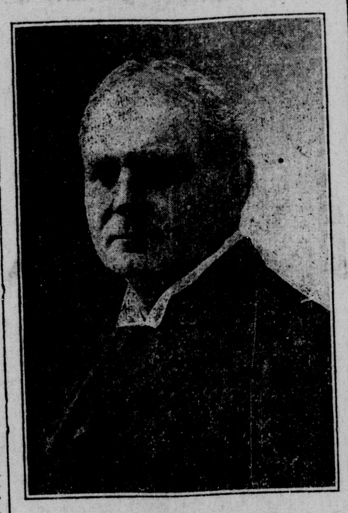

The success of the movement in Massachusetts has led to the establishment of juvenile courts all over the country, and especially in the large cities. Chicago was the first to have a judge especally for this court. In this city there are twelve probation officers, women for the girls and men to deal with the boys.

The successful and tactful officer comes to take the place of an elder brother or sister in the family of the delinquent. He is not feared nor his visits detested, as one might think, and as at first they were. The mother soon learns that he is helping her to keep order, and he is permitted to give suggestions and help in improving the homes so that the family life becomes happier.

The children do not fear the court as formerly, and will tell when they have done wrong, because they know that they will get a "square deal." Nearly all first offenders are given a probation period, and this has been found very successful. Out of 1,339 delinquents before the court, 1,095 were let go on probation, and only 203 of these were ever returned because of a second offense. Out of 256 who were given a parole from the reformatory, only 23 were remanded. In the old way nearly all of these boys would have been fined or sentenced for a short period, and against this they would have rebelled and have been the worse for it.

In Buffalo, Philadelphia, New York, St. Louis and other cities the probation plan—the helping plan—has been tried with marked success. In St. Louis it has the hearty commendation of all charity workers, and they work with and for the court. But nowhere has the juvenile court had such marked favor as is shown under Judge Ben B. Lindsay.

This is how it happened: He, like other judges, had been trying

HON. CHAMP CLARK,
Who Speaks Before the Christian Church Convention Monday Night

childrens cases along with others, his ideal being that of justice for man and boy alike, with no thought of love or help. One day he was startled and set thinking by the cry of a mother whose son he had just sentenced to a term in the reformatory. He took him back to his room for a talk and came out believing that the boy should be released, and that with his help he'd make good if he were given another chance.

Shortly after this some boys were brought in who had been accused of robbing a pigeon roost. An old man was the accuser, and he said many a boy had tried to rob him, but had not been caught, and now since he had them he wanted to see them punished. From his questioning the judge learned that when a boy he had wanted to rob the same roost, but had been afraid, and now how could he send these boys up just because they had more courage than he had possessed? After he had had a talk with the boys in which he had shown them that it was weak to "swipe" things or do anything that was against the law, they promised to bring in the rest of their crowd. When they came he formed them in a sort of good order club and they became defenders of the law in their community.

These two cases had opened his eyes and he asked if he might not be permitted to try all children's cases brought into the Denver courts. This was readily granted, for the judge's all hated a child case, for it was a lot of trouble about nothing. Since that time he has been Ben B. Lindsay, the "kid judge," and he knows all the boys in Denver, and they know and love him.

Just a few instances will show how successful and fruitful his work has been. The street car company complained about some boys, who had been bothering the cars and troubling the motormen. Several of the boys had been arrested and he talked to them about how weak it was to do things and then run from them and asked them if they didn't want to help him to keep order down there where they lived. They had never heard such talk before and they liked it. They said he gave them a "square deal." He asked them to bring in the rest of their gang for a talk. They promised to try, but came in at the appointed time alone. The judge gave them a letter for the rest of the boys and the next day fifty-two came in and he formed them into a club to keep order among the other boys of that vicinity.

The car company and policemen were disgusted with the scheme, but had to acknowledge after a time that it worked. They had no more trouble with the boys of that neighborhood. They themselves kept such good order that the policeman was taken away from that beat.

In one family there were two sons. One was arrested before the time of juvenile courts, was sent to the reformatory and is now serving a term in the state's prison for a second offense. The other boy was brought to Judge Lindsay, was given over to the probation officer, and at last reports was doing fine.

The judge wanted to keep in touch with the boys, so he has them come to him every other Saturday morning. Before they come in they must have a bath in a room he has fitted up for the purpose. He has arranged with the teachers in the public schools to give the boys fortnightly reports, which they are to bring to him at these informal meetings. He'll call the boys from a certain schoor. They'll come forward and he knows each one by the name the boys use. He knows their slang and talks to them as if he was one of the gang. For one boy he will have the heartiest praise for his excellent report. Another one will promise to have a better report next time. One or two, perhaps, have utterly failed. They have played truant or committed some nuisance,and he talks earnestly with them. To one he may give another chance, but the other must go up to the reformatory now. He is yet too weak, and they will help him up there. He never talks about punishment, but a boy goes to the reformatory because he is weak and they will help to make him strong there.

Thus, the boys come to respect rather than fear and hate the law. The court has become one of approbation rather than of probation and the judge is their friend. They go to him at all hours with their trials. He takes them home to dinner or takes a crowd to a good show. He becomes one of them, and through the trust placed in them, they become worthy of trust. He teaches them, too, that by doing some good thing they help to undo the weak, the wrong thing. This is coming to be the spirit in which the work is carried on everywhere. The reformatory at Elmira, N. Y., has become famous for the very systematic way in which the childs nature is studied and in which they seek to build up the weak part. The theory is that the the delinquent child is abnormal somewhere, and that an inspiring, uplifting environment and something to do, which will give him studious employment, will help to overcome abnormal conditions.

We all know that the normal child calls for a four-sided development, and it is even more true that the abnormal needs a more thorough and careful training. The public school child, as a rule, has a decent and even helpful environment in the home and church, but the reformatory child as a rule has had neither, and at Elmira they seek to provide things that help, that uplift. The child is given physical exercise best suited to develop the weak parts of his body. For the mind, certain studies that tend to develop the weak places is prescribed. The child is thoroughly studied and they seek to give amusement and social and moral training that will improve his usefulness of character.

Another institution which has attracted universal attention and which has helped to make strong men and women out of waifs and outcasts is the George Junior Republic, founded in 1895 by W. R. George, of Freeville, N. Y. Here the citizens have their president, senate, congress and police officers, elected from among their own number. They make their own laws, conduct their own business enterprises, till the ground and build their houses, meanwhile learning to be honest, self-respecting, upright citizens for the greater republic outside. At the 10th anniversary, in 1905, among those who came back, who had been citizens were students from Harvard and Cornell, and young men from the various cities of the country, who were making good by their useful lives. It pays to trust, to take an interest in the child who is to be the man that will either benefit or harm his fellows and his country.

In London, in the year 1856, Dr. Barnardo saw eleven boys with very little clothing and no covering, sleeping on a house top one cold night. They were huddled together in various groups, trying to keep warm. The scene touched him deeply and some nights afterward he told of this visit at a dinner where Lord Shaftesbury was a guest. His hearers wanted to investigate and see if such conditions did really exist. They went down through this neighborhood on a tour of inspection, but could find no boys. They were poking around in a pile of old crates, boxes and tarpaulins, when a policeman said: "Offer them a half penny, and I'll bet you'll find some; they'll crawl out of there like rats." The offer was made and out of that pile of old rubbish seventy-three live boys—boys who were growing to manhood came. Now, all such boys are not destitute. They could have food at home but ther is nothing to make home attractive and they stray away. Cities everywhere have hundreds of waifs. Since the year 1816 Dr. Bernardo has established eighty-two homes for homeless waifs, and 26,000 have been received. He spent £150,000 annually for this work. George Miller, another great man of faith, seeing how the waifs and outcaast children were neglected and shoved downward, established one orphanage after another to care for them, and aroused all over England and the world a greater interest in children.

In New York when the children's court was viewed with some doubt, and it was hard to get the co-operation of the people in caring for the children, a probation officer went one night before the men's club of the Central Presbyterian church and so stirred the members that each man promised to look after one boy, and it was found so interesting to the men and helpful to the boys that a club was formed. The men visited in the homes, their wives looked after the neglected girls, and there was a great improvement in the neighborhood. The children and their parents learned to love and trust these people, and were filled with a desire to be decent and strong.

Sometimes we think that because these poor people don't have pleasant surroundings, that because they don't have fine pictures and music, that they do not and would not care for such things. They do not have them because nobody helps them to obtain them. In many of these children great talent is wasted because there is nobody to bring it out. Some musicians one time founded a musical club in New York in one of the poor neighborhoods. They invited all who would and could play an instrument to come for a rehearsal. They had decided to play only the good music. Boys and girls of various ages came with a motley array of instruments. One boy brought only his bow, the violin being for the time in the pawn shop. At the end of the season they gave a concert in a large hall and played some of the best music well. In another part of the city some girls rented a house and fitted it up as a studio and taught children how to play. They asked them to play what they could, but expected little and taught them the meaning of good music and how to play it. In both of these neighborhoods a general improvement was noticed. Some of the children made professional musicians and others were given new ideals and made something worth while out of their lives.

So this work among children has

NAME YOUR WANTS

And call upon me, and I will render you aid without cost to you.

I am selling or exchanging properties every day, and I might do so for you.

A few close in cottages, and some beauties, at very low values.

I will match your purse and give you the best counsel and it costs you nothing.

I have several business houses for sale, several to exchange and several suburban homes that will make your eyes water—to see the lucious strawberry and all other kinds of fruits.

No extra charge for the fruit. But you must see these, and there are few homes in Missouri like those around and nearby Sedalia.

If you want a home, large or small, centrally located, I have it.

I have 9 rooms, close in; will take a cottage as part pay.

Let us talk it over and be good natured about it.

Remembering when you list your property with me its almost equal to a sale.

grown into every phase of the child life. First, the reformatories came to keep them out of prison, the juvenile courts tried to keep them out of the reformatories, and now we are planning things to keep them out of the juvenile courts. Children everywhere need the confidence, the trust of older people, and Christ meant it for us when he said to Peter: "Feed my lambs." We may call the work new, and it is new, but it is founded on a very old truth.

Listen to these words from Judge Lindsay, of Denver: "The great movements for the betterment of our children are simply typical of the noblest spirit of this age—the Christ spirit of unselfish love, of hope and joy. It has reachd its acme in what were formerly the criminal courts. The old process is changed. Instead of coming to destroy, we come to rescue. Instead of coming to punish, we come to uplift. Instead of coming to hate, we come to love."

After all that may be said for the thought and plans and laws and justice, the love message of Jesus Christ is still greater.

From that other great benefactor to child life, Dr. Barnardo, we have these words: "I have myself proved over and over again that a new and healthy environment is more powerful to transform than even heredity has been in planting and evolving taint. Change and purify the former early enough and the latter will disappear in a generation. And there is no factor so omnipotent as to change environment as the influence of a true and righteous life. Spite, therefore, of what the scoffers say, the religion of Jesus Christ can do and has done more for the children of the slums than anything else."

He is the Savior of all children, none are excluded from his love. His power is to strengthen all, and the child needs that strength as it comes through the life of an elder into its own.

It is a lamented fact that today there are not more men in the church. That problem is being solved when the boys are being gcared for. Keep the boy interested and when ge grows into manhood he will be found there. If he is taught that the church is merely an institution of goodness and that he ought to go—when there is no pleasant feature, to him at least, about it—o wonder he tires. You can't like a person as a friend merely because he or she is good. There are many good people that are not at all attractive to you. Well, neither can the child like the church merely because it is a good thing; there must be something about it that touches a chord in his life—something that draws him to it and holds him there. As between friends, there is a point that binds; there is common ground. So there must be something common between the church and child.

The junior societies, mission bands, boys' clubs, boys' brigades, etc., have been established in order that the children might be held in the church. They make the church the center for the life of the child. He can find in these organizations congenial friends, among those of his own age. And in the superintendent or the one who has charge, the child finds a friend to advise and help, and supplement the home training; ad i many cases this friendship saves where the home influence would destroy.

Gangs and bands among boys are not of themselves detrimental. The harm comes from a lack of guidance. They must give expression, in come way, to their feelig of good comradeship. They must, too, give vent to their surplus energy. This may be done through harmless play, or by destroying property and stealing. It is our duty and privilege to supply channels for this pent-up energy.

I believe the Junior Endeavor societies might to a very great extent be broadened to include much of the work of these other organizations and they would be a greater power if that were done. Some place I read of a Junior society with a splendidly organized band, which met for practice every week and which gave concerts on various occasions in the town.

You can see how one organization like the Junior society could have as its instruments the athletic club, the musical club and even a Boys' Brigade, and be of much more use and strength than a half dozen different organizations, all struggling for a place and time of meeting, while all under one head would be more harmonious.

The Junior society has done its work largely through its prayer meetings. This is very helpful in the training of the child mind and should not be put aside, but only added to. In the mind of the child there is naturally the instinct which cries out for God and unless he is permitted and taught to express this, it lies dormant and sometimes cannot be wakened in after life.

The child by his gifts, prayers and talks, learns to show his love for Christ and that love grows through the expression given to it. He may hear what he shall do and what Christ teaches, in the Bible school, and he may have many opportunities through the week to put that into practice, but he will do it more readily if some one older directs and helps him to live out these principles until they become a part of him. Keep the children interested and when they grow up you will have an interested church. In the old way the child had to go there was no service for him, no planning for his interest and development. The new way is the Christ way and unless He is in and through all plans, they are useless.

In work among children, one gets very close to Christ. You catch some of His spirit as he said, "Suffer the little children to come unto me and forbid them not, for to such belongeth the kingdom of heaven." And when "He called to him a little child and set him in the midst of them and said, Verily I say unto you, except ye turn and become as little children ye shall in no wise enter into the kingdom of heaven. Whosoever therefore shall humble himself as this little child, the same is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven." This Savior, who is the same yesterday, today and forever, loves the child as of old, and still there are many lessons in its life for us. When your life seems corrupt, is there anything more pure for your contemplation than the clean, white life of a little child. When your faith is growing weak, what will so strengthen as the simple trust of a child? When Christ seems to be slipping out of your life, study the child's life and see Christ there. Who is generous like the child. Who so frank and sincere?

It is wonderful to be in the atmosphere of children and while you work and plan, helping them to grow and build character, all the while they are helping you to a deeper knowledge of Christ. Than this there can be no greater blessing, than that you may know Christ and abide in Him. The new way is not new after all—it is the simple, the Christian way and that was introduced by Christ himself. We need to be sure that what we do is filled with His spirit and then methods and other things will take care of themselves, for His way is the natural way—the highest way.

You can find common ground with the child in your sincerity—he knows and hates sham. He knows whether or not you love him and his heart is full of love that will meet yours if your live be true. These fine virtues which are found in the child's life and which must be in ours if we would help him, can only be had through a close walk with Christ. This is the test and many fail just here.

"Only a smile, yes, only a smile
That a child o'er-burdened with grief
Expected from you; 'twould have given relief
For that heavy ached sore the while,
But weary and cheerless he went away
Because, as it happened, that very day,
You were out of touch with your Lord.

"Only a word, yes, only a word
That the spirit's small voice whispered 'Speak,'
But the worker passed onward, unblest and weak,
Whom you were meant to have stirred
To courage, devotion and love anew,
Because, when the message came to you,
You were out of touch with your Lord."

Saturday Evening Service.

Opening service of Christian Endeavor session. Evangelist Simpson Ely, of Joplin, lead the song service.

H. A. Denton, of Maryville, state president presided. The annual address was delivered by John L. Brandt, minister of First Christian church, of St. Louis. Dr. Brandt spoke upon the subject of Christian Endeavor Banners. He said every nation and all organizations have their banners. These contain the principles of nations and organizations. The Christian Endeavor society has its banner, and upon it we find its principles. The first inscription reads, "For Christ and the Church." Endeavorers make Christ the central truth of its pledge. In times past creeds and dogmas have made Christ only one item, but this society makes Christ center and circumference of their belief.

The second banner will be Christian Living. The world demands today that if we profess Christ we must live Christ. Tertullion said before the Roman senate: "Our religion stands for purity of heart, service to man and honor to God." So today we are striving to live for Christ.

The third banner is Christian Service. After we individually live for Christ, then we must enter the activities of the world to serve our fellow men for Christ. Today we need more than ever to emphasize Christian service.

The Fourth banner, Christian Citizenship. England may boast of her king, Germany her kaiser, Russia of her czar, but America must and always will glory in her citizenship. We must stand for law and order and support men who enforce the law. There is a moral responsibility upon every citizen to oppose every form of evil. We must oppose saloons, gambling, boodlers and corruptors of the ballot box. I know not what inventions may spring from the brains of men or what books may be written, nor what amendments added to constitutions, but the greatest boon to our citizenship will be a law enacted forever prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating drinks.

The Fifth Banner will be Christian Union. The Bible school and Endeavorers are two great factors in bringing Christ's divided church together. Christian union would banish 250,000 saloons from America. Christian union would forever settle political corruption with all its attendant evils.

The last banner will contain the words, Christian Evangelization of the World. No minister nor Endeavorer who is not in full sympathy with world wide missions can claim to understand their Master's life and teaching.

We must enter into the great purpose of our Master's work. This involves prayer, much prayer, that we may have a divine passion for souls. Every endeavorer must become a soul winner. Jesus is the only religious teacher in all the world that invites the weary and heavy laden to come. Buddha, Confuscius and Mohammed never invited men to come. Arouse ye, young men and women of the church of Christ and invite men and women to enter the service of your Lord.

For twelve years we have bid for the good will of the consumer, and he is a good fellow to cater to. Give him good value for his money and he is certainly for you. For this reason we have seen a good many competitors come and go. If your dealer won't pay a fair price for Crawford's, try the dealer who does, but insist on getting "Crawford's." It's the best.

THE SMALLPOX SCARE

What the Otterville "Mail" Says in Regard to It.

During the past week there have been all sorts of rumors about the smallpox being in town, says the Otterville Mail. In view of this we have deemed it advisable to make a statement of facts, just as they exist.

There is one mild case of smallpox in town. From its first inception this has been strictly isolated, so that there has been no possible chance for it to spread.

There are two cases of old-fashioned measles—Dr. Howlett's grandchildren—and these, too, are isolated, under the care of Dr. Howlett, which in itself guarantees that the public will be thoroughly safeguarded. There is no possible danger of smallpox spreading, or of anyone catching it in Otterville.

We can also assure the public that, should there ever be an epidemic of smallpox here, the town board stands ready to take such measures as the law directs to prevent its spreading.

REGARDING RAILROADS

ASSISTANT MANAGER CHOSEN FOR THE MISSOURI, KANSAS AND TEXAS.

COACH, CAB AND CABOOSE ITEMS

Matters of Interest Picked Up From Various Sources for the Benefit of Democrat-Sentinel Readers.

Vice President and General Manager A. A. Allen, of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas, announces that A. D. Bethard had been appointed assistant general manager, effective yesterday. The appointment applies to the Missouri, Kansas and Texas system, including the Texas lines, and Mr. Bethard will have headquarters in St. Louis and Dallas. He fills the vacancy on the system caused by the resignation of Mr. Maxwell, who went to the Cotton Belt in Texas. The Globe-Democrat says:

Mr. Bethard has seen fifteen years of steady service with the Katy, and has been promoted from train dispatcher to superintendent of transportation of the Texas lines, with headquarters at Denison. The latter position he has held for four years. He will be succeeded at Denison as superintendent of transportation by W. J. Walton, who was at one time superintendent at Parsons and who left the Katy to go to the 'Frisco and subsequently returned to the Katy. Mr. Walton's appointment likewise extends to the entire system, and he will have headquarters at St. Louis as well as in Denison.

About the Interurban Road.

J. A. Deerwester was in Sedalia this week in the interest of the interurban road, says Friday's Bunceton Eagle.

Mr. Deerwester is of the belief that the road can be built. He not only says so, but he has made a proposition which proves that he means just what he says.

It now looks as if the line connecting Fulton, St. Charles and other points north of the Missouri river will be built. If this is true, the Missouri interurban can also be built and the two roads connected, just as they should be.

Alleged Spotter Causes Strike.

Practically all of the switchmen in the Louisville and Nashville railroad yards at Howell, Ind., went on strike Friday, because a man who is working in the yards is regarded as a "spotter," and the company refused to discharge him.

Systemic Catarrh of Summer Affects Many Organs of the Body.

"There is no better remedy in the world than Pe-ru-na for systemic catarrh."
S. B. Hartman, M. D.

A War Veteran's Experience.

General A. F. Hawley, 1336 25th street, N. W., Washington, D. C., writes:
"I have used Peruna and find it very beneficial for kidney trouble, and especially good for coughs, colds and catarrhal trouble."

Spring and Summer Catarrh.

There is a form of catarrh especially prevalent in spring and summer, called by Dr. Hartman systemic catarrh.

This form of catarrh especially deranges the stomach, bowels and other organs of the abdomen. The whole mucous tract lining the stomach, liver, bowels and kidneys is in an inflamed condition, and these organs fail to perform their proper function.

Systemic catarrh may be or may not be accompanied by catarrh in other parts of the body. In some cases there is a hacking cough. It may be also associated with catarrh in the head.

But, in typical cases of systemic catarrh all the organs of the abdomen are in a weakened and sluggish condition.

Dyspepsia and Biliousness.

Sometimes it is called dyspepsia, at other times biliousness, or the patient may be suspected of having kidney disease or appendicitis.

Systemic catarrh presents symptoms which resemble closely a great many different diseases.

Peruna has for a long time been regarded as the remedy par excellence for conditions of this kind.

The accompanying testimonials are sufficient to indicate the promptness with which Peruna relieves these symptoms and the satisfaction which people express concerning the use of Peruna.

Catarrh of Stomach.

Mr. W. R. Callahan, proprietor of Big Hill Farm, and a prominent fruit grower and stock raiser, Glenvar, Va., writes:

"I write to express my kindness toward you and your good medicine, Peruna.

"I had a very bad spell of sickness and could not eat anything at all.

"My head, stomach, in fact, my whole body ached, and it looked as though nothing would do me any good.

"I had almost given up. I decided to try a bottle of your Peruna and before I had taken half the bottle my appetite came to me and my head became all right."

"WHITE SHIP OF MERCY"

BOSTON'S NEW FLOATING HOSPITAL ABOUT TO BEGIN FIRST SEASON.

THE TREATMENT OF SICK BABIES

Teaches Mothers Not to Feed Their Little Ones on Pickles and Beer —An Improvement on Milk of Cows.

Special to the Democrat-Sentinel.

Boston, June 15.—"This concern has the back fire escape beat a mile as a place for a sick child of a hot night," said a grateful mother as she received her afflicted little one in improved health from the Boston floating hospital, "The White Ship of Mercy," as it has poetically been called.

The same sentiment has been variously expressed in the last few years. No charity anywhere, it is highly probable, is more highly appreciated than is this unique Boston enterprise, which has attracted the attention of practical sociologists throughout the world. No sight, furthermore, along the waterfront of the New England capital, not even the historical Old Ironsides herself, as she lies off Uncle Sam's navy yard, proves more interesting to the hundreds of thousands of visitors during the summer months than that of the twin-screw steamer whose landing place is at the north end recreation pier. Equipped for taking three hundred sick children day or night out where the sea breezes blow uncontaminated with the city's dust, she typifies a form of philanthropy that is almost certain sooner or later to be followed by every other city which has access to the sea or a navigable lake or river.

The present season will be a notable one in the history of this charity because it will be the first in which the new and specially designed ship of the floating hospital will have been in use throughout the hot weather, equipped with refrigerating apparatus for keeping the temperature of some of its wards at about 72 degrees, whatever the torridity outside. The old boat with which many thousands of Americans are familiar, a craft remodled and furnished as well as could be for hospital purposes, but not originally designed for such service, has now become a memory.

Take the sick child out to sea and you greatly increase the chance of his recovering. So directly and evidently useful is this charity that it has not only become well organized in Boston, but inquiries show that the system is being considered in many other cities. Already great interest has been aroused in the plan in England, already the New York floating hospital and the allied seaside hospital are carrying on a similar beneficent work, although the metropolitan steamship receives thus far day patients only. Explaining how the details of the hospital that goes to sea are arranged, the thirteenth annual report of the institution has lately been published, in connection with the advent of the new season, and at the same time to other persons who may be interested in a briefer statement an illustrated folder has been sent out from the floating hospital headquarters at 54 Devonshire street.

One of the earliest floating hospitals is said to have been developed in the near by city of Lowell, Mass., where Dr. Thomas F. Harrington, a local physician who has given considerable attenton to the study of infant mortality among the poor, and who also originated the plan of getting the fire department to flood the streets in the tenement district on very hot days, about 1891 devised the plan of sending sick children in the charge of nurses up the Merrimack in a steamboat to escape the terrific heat of the city. The work in Boston began about 1894, when five experimental day trips were made on a hired barge with only volunteer service. The next year under the same system thirteen day trips were taken, while in 1896 daily trips, except Sunday, were inaugurated, and the work was given into the hands of a board of managers, a medical staff and two paid nurses. In 1897 the barge "Clifford was bought and equipped to care for 150 sick infants and children. In 1898 two wards were established for permanent patients and a night service was organized. From 1898 to 1900, the work developed steadily, and in the middle of August last summer the new boat, specially designed and built to be a modern hospital, and embodying the result of years of study on the part of those connected with the work, was put into commission.

REV. EDWARD OWERS,
Pastor of Christian Church, Farmington, Mo.

Accordingly, during the present summer, when Old Sol vouchsafes some of the swelter that usually afflicts our large cities during July and August, the white ship of healing, provided with physicians and white gowned nurses, will daily drop down the harbor each morning and anchor in quiet waters behind Hull or elsewhere, returning late in the afternoon to discharge its day passengers and to remain off the recreation pier with those whose critical condition makes a night on the water away from the city's noise and jar the greatest of all possible blessings.

Aboard the hospital ship those children who are most in danger from the effects of heat will escape that evil even when parching breezes come off the land. It has been made possible through the generosity of persons supporting this philanthropy to install a refrigerating plant, by means of which comfort is brought to the little patients in some of the wards even during the most heated term. The familiar ammonia cold storage system allows air to be taken into the boat from the outside, passed over frosty ammonia coils and thus chilled at the same time that all moisture is removed. The dry air is then rewarmed to the requisite temperature over a series of steam coils and sent into the ward. Accordingly, when certain outside conditions demand it, certain of the wards of the floating hospital may have their windows closed to shut out fog, mist of heat, and still give their ailing inmates the benefit of pure air at an even temperature.

The floating hospital, to describe it more fully, is provided with forecastle, laundry and clothes sterilizing rooms; engine room with pumps; electric light dynamo, ventilating fans, a mothers' and employes' dining room; kitchen, storage and refrigerator rooms. On the main deck are the offices, a large, permanent ward, the food laboratory, the pharmacy, the clinical laboratory, the linen room, the nurses' bath and locker rooms, the dining room for nurses and doctors. The day patients' deck has ample space, both for beds and seating capacity for mothers. There are seven permanent wards, with a capacity for 150 beds. One of these is an outdoor ward, located in the stern, where the little patients remain in the open air both day and night. The others, inside wards, are supplied through ducts with air cooled, as indicated to a temperature of 70 degrees to 72 degrees. This refrigerating system will unquestionably be the direct means of saving many lives on sultry nights and days.

Statistics of children treated by the Boston floating hospital, all involving children under six years of age, demonstrate the service rendered to the community. Very many of them are desperate when received. Some of these belong to the class of patients known as permanent, of whom last year's record shows that 143 were discharged well, 93 were relieved, 49 not relieved, and 181 died. Fifty of them were actually moribund at entrance and lived only less than forty-eight hours. Most of these children were suffering from disorders which, in the opinion of competent physicians, would have meant almost certain death if they had been left in their sweltering homes.

The day patients are received often in charge of their mothers or older sisters, who get the benefit of a trip on the water from 9 until half past 4. The total number of such patients discharged in 1906 was 770, and they made 2,499 trips. Of these 126 children were discharged well, 420 improved condition, 212 in apparently unimproved condition, 10 refused treatment and 2 died.

When there is room for them well children whom the mothers can not leave at home are allowed to go down the harbor for a day. These sit out on the foredeck and play games under the direction of a trained kindergartner. A familiar picture last year when the boat returned in the afternoon was a mother who supports seven children by scrubbing in an office building and to whom the opportunity to send the youngsters away for a day was a boon. The total number of trips made by well and sick children with their mothers or sisters in attendance aggregated last year 12,970.

Not the least of the benefits is the education imparted to mothers who either accompany the children on the ship or learn from them some of the things done by the trained attendants on board. It is no exaggeration to say that the consumption among little children of sour pickles, sweet pickles, green apples, onions, black coffee, strong tea, beer and whiskey has been materially decreased in Boston through the influence of the floating hospital. Not uncommonly has the mother come down to the boat with a sick baby who had a pickle in his mouth—a direct evidence of the cause of its ailment.

A particularly beneficial hygienic feature aboard the boat is the food laboratory, which has already made important contributions to present day knowledge of infant feeding. Its greatest achievement, up to this time, perhaps, has been the attainment of an unprecedented quality of milk—that is to say, of lactic mixtures which very closely approximate the human article. Cows milk, as almost everybody knows, practically if not theoretically, contains about four times as much curd as does human milk. It is therefore in its natural form not absolutely a proper food for young children. To render it more digestible is a problem for chemists, and it is one which the experts of the food laboratory of the Boston floating hospital believe that they have pretty well solved. They have arrived at very satisfactory milk mixtures so far as percentages of sugar and proteid go. At the same time they have virtually reached perfection of sterilizing, for they succeed in reducing the number of bacteria per cubic centimeter from the 500,000, which the Boston board of health sets as the outside limit of safety, down to as low as a bare 130 bacteria to the same quantity of milk. Harmful germs, in general, are banished from this substitute for the "fire escape hospital."

This charitable undertaking is dependent upon the voluntary contributions of individuals and associations. It has long been the custom to give individuals the privilege of naming a day's trip as a memorial, usually to some deceased friend or relative, or, it may be, in honor of some person living. The sum fixed by the trustees for this opportunity is $150, and so generally are the days taken that the custom has also grown up of naming the nights in the same manner at a cost of $100.

It has become a species of noblesse oblige among the well-to-do of Boston and the neighborhood to take at least one day or night for the support of the floatng hospital.

The institution is conducted like any other good hospital, with a board of trustees, a visiting staff, an auxiliary staff, a resident physician, a house staff, several medical assistants and forty or fifty graduate nurses. Not among the largest contributors to its support, but now and then among the most enthusiastic, are the recipients themselves of the benefits of the charity. It is not uncommon for the manager, Mr. G. Loring Briggs, to receive in an envelope a dollar or two dollars from some grateful parents who feel that their child's life has been saved and who wish to give what their means allow toward saving the lives of others.

SHOOTING FROM TRAPS

It Is a Growing Sport Among Shotgun Shooters.

Trap shooting, a growing sport among shotgun shooters, owes much to the Interstate Association for the Promotion of Trap Shooting, which has perfected the rules, organized the tournaments and assisted in a thousand ways to raise it to the present high level.

Started in 1892, it had a pretty hard time up to the first grand American handicap, which was held at Dexter park, L. I., April 5 to 7, 1893. From that time interest in trap shooting became general in the east. Then it spread westward, and in 1902, when the Grand American handicap was held at Kansas City, Mo., there was an entry list of 493, with 456 actual starters.

Last year the sport had practically captured every section of the country, and four new handicaps were arranged. The Eastern handicap was held at Philadelphia; the Southern at Nashville, Tenn.; the Western at Denver, Colo., and the Pacific Coast handicap at Los Angeles, Cal. All were successes in every way.

The Interstate tournaments for the coming season will be the Southern handicap, at Richmond, Va., May 8 to 10; the Grand American handicap at Chicago, June 18 to 21; the Eastern handicap at Boston, July 16 to 18; the Western handicap at Denver, August 20 to 22, and the Pacific Coast handicap at Spokane, Wash., September 10 to 12.

A number of Sweet Springs people attended the annual reunion at Pisgah church, near Elmwood, last Sunday, a larger crowd being in attendance on this occasion than at any previous meeting since these reunions had their inception, fourteen years ago. Early Wednesday morning the alarm of fire was given, and upon investigation, the fire was located in the frame building at the west end of Main street, which was occupied by A. S. Reinbert as a tin shop. This was one of the oldest buildings in use in Sweet Springs, having been used continuously for perhaps fifty years. The flames were extinguished, after considerable damage to the building and some slight damage to the contents, neither of which were insured.

E. L. Spurgeon and wife entertained a party of friends at dinner Sunday at their beautiful country home, south of the city.

The beautiful home of Mrs. W. H. Progressive forty-two was indulged in and at the close Mrs. J. D. Smith and Miss Tracy Berry, of Houstonia, were found to have scored highest. The hostess, with the assistance of Mrs. F. H. Tisdale, served a dainty luncheon in courses. In addition to the society ladies of Sweet Springs, a number of out-of-town guests were present. The charming guest of honor came among us a bride just a short time ago, and in that time has endeared herself to every one fortunate enough to have met her, and every one took advantage of the opportunity afforded by this delightful function.

A joint meeting of the Priscilla and Whist clubs was held with Mrs. C. L. Jones Wednesday afternoon. Some of the ladies of the Priscilla club refuse to play whist, while some members of the Whist club refuse to do fancy work. So the tactful hostess compromised on forty-two, and a delightful afternoon was the result, the prize, a beautiful plate, being won by Mrs. M. G. Brown. A delicious lunch was served, which concluded one of the most enjoyable parties of the season.

RECITAL WAS PLEASING

THAT GIVEN AT THE HOME OF MRS. W. D. STEELE FRIDAY AFTERNOON.

BY TWO WELL ADVANCED PUPILS

Misses Grace Carma nand May Goodwin Gave a Recital of Songs That Truly Delighted Every Hearer.

Mrs. W. D. Steele gave her final recital on Friday afternoon at her home on Kentucky street. On last Tuesday most of the members of her class had sung, but on Friday the program was given by two advanced pupils, Miss Grace Carman and Miss Mary Goodwin. The audience was made up of music lovers and friends of the participants, and was unstinted in its praise of the young ladies' beautiful singing.

Each sang with that ease of delivery and beauty of tone which characterizes the good singer and reflected great credit upon themselves as students and their teacher.

Miss Carman possesses a high, sweet, bird-like soprano voice, and Miss Goodwin a rich contralto, of large range and feeling. The voices formed a pleasing contrast on the solos and blended well in the duets.

Miss Sara Payne was the able accompanist, and her work deserves the highest praise.

Miss Lillie Brandt played a double number on the violin beautifully and added much to the pleasure of the afternoon. The following is the program given:

PUDDING THAT WILL KEEP.

Savory and Cheap Dessert Ready to Serve at Any Time.

One-half cup beef suet chopped fine, one and one-half cups seeded raisins, one cup New Orleans molasses, one cup milk, three cups flour, one-half teaspoon soda dissolved in warm water; beat the molasses and soda water well; add milk, suet, raisins, then flour. Put in an airtight vessel and set in boiling water to steam four hours. Sauce for same.—One pint water thickened with two tablespoons cornstarch, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, half cup sugar; just a little nutmeg and allspice, juice of one lemon, little grated rind, whisky to taste; boil and serve hot. When done and turned out on a plate it resembles fruit cake. Slice as much as you want in thin slices and put the remaining portion away. Turn a granite cooking vessel over it to keep it moist, and it will keep a long time. When you want to serve it again cut as much as you need and warm it by steaming in closed vessel.

HAVE THE HOME ORIGINAL.

Ideal Abiding Place Carries Stamp of Individuality.

The surest way of making the home distinctive is to do all we can ourselves, and stamp it with our own individuality.

Never copy other people's ideas of comfort and decoration, but employ your own talents and experience to the best advantage by carrying out original designs and schemes. Don't copy; originate.

If you can't afford to buy a new parlor table on the installment plan, you may buy a cheap table, and cover it with pretty chintz and muslin very reasonably indeed; and if the covering matches the wall paper, the success of the venture will be doubly sure.

All husbands appreciate the efforts of wives to make the home pretty, bright, and dainty, and as they are mortal, and do not possess inexhaustible purses, it will please them still more when they hear it is all "home-made."

Swiss Curtains.

A pretty way to finish white swiss curtains for summer use is to edge them down the fronts and along the bottoms with narrow linen or cotton lace. It is not fulled in, but stitched on flat by machine. Curtains of swiss never should fall below the window sill, and, when edged with lace, may have a hem an inch or more wide on the fronts and bottoms, with the lace sewn to the edge. This finish is far more durable and neat than ruffling the material on, and the expense is about the same, since lace may be bought for from three to five cents a yard. Overdraperies of cretonne also may be finished at the edges with lace, and this will tend to make them hang better, as the stitching and extra weight of the lace make the edge firm.

A Card of Thanks.

To the many friends whose aid and sympathy were extended in our late bereavement, the death of our beloved husband and father, we desire to return our sincere thanks. Especially are we under lasting obligations to the Rev. Frs. Neiberg and Daniel, the Military band, Knights of Columbus, Pioneer society, A. O. U. W., the city press and immediate neighbors, for their many kindly acts. That an Allwise Providence may ever watch over you is our sincere prayer. —Mrs. L. E. Friemel and Children

Bribery in Business.

It is not to be denied that our commercial ethics need bracing up. The secret commission, the direct bribe, the many-headed monster "treating," the masked present, all these form an obstacle in the path of the honest and direct business. They may seem harmless little practices enough carried out on a small scale; but in the bulk they represent a formidable element which has perceptible effect on business generally.—Drapers' Record.

"Red" Davis Has Been Traded by Topeka to Webb City.

The Topeka Journal of Friday afternoon had this item of local interest:

Red Davis has been traded to Webb City for Dalrymple and the two men will change teams within a few days. Overtures for the trade were commenced a few days ago when Webb City was playing in Topeka and have just been brought to a close.

Dalrymple is one of the best batters in the league and will help out the team materially in this respect. Last season he batted 256 and fielded .972. Davis formerly belonged to Webb City before he came to Topeka last season.

Production of Oil.

Although the production of crude petroleum in America is making enormous strides every year, the bulk of this comes from new territories which yield heavy oils containing little or no spirit. In fact, the fields which have in the past supplied the world with petroleum spirit and high-class illuminating oils are, it is said, failing, so much so that the center of production is no longer in the eastern states, but lies equally between the gulf states and Calafornia. Recent work in the midcontinental fields shows, however, that there is a prospect of the supply of high-grade oils being increased.—Engineer.

LETTER FROM GOTHAM

UNSEASONABLE WEATHER HAS CAUSED LARGE LOSSES TO RETAILERS.

ANENT THE "DIET" DISCUSSION

Minister Lays Corner Stone for Cigar Factory—The Heroism of a Little Girl Was Something Remarkable.

Special to Democrat-Sentinel.

New York, June 15. Unseasonable weather has caused losses to the New York wholesalers and retailers in wearing apparel, hats and shoes that run into the millions. Stocks laid in by the department stores and small retail dealers early in the spring still encumber the shelves, and the wholesale houses are unable to collect for the goods they have delivered all over the country, for the reason that sales are as backward in other cities and towns as in New York.

Hundreds of employes have been laid off. One big store suspended 472 salespeople; another 170. The more optimistic shopkeepers hope to catch up as soon as the weather turns warm, but even a blistering spell in a few days will fail to save heavy losses, in the estimation of many merchants. Suits, hats and general apparel designed for spring wear will not be sold. When the rush of buyers comes it will go to the distinctively summer grades. The loss falls heaviest on small retailers handling only one line. Their stocks are practically intact. Haberdashers especially have suffered.

Anent the diet discussion, Upton Sinclair sends to a newspaper the following sample of a regime which he says has proved proper for a man of 28, who weighs 126 pounds, and works his brain fairly hard: Breakfast (8 a. m.), one cup of cool water (no ice), half a dozen uncooked prunes. Dinner (2:30), one lamb-chop or plate of soup, one small potato, one saucer of some other vegetable, two slices whole wheat bread, four inch-cubes of butter, one saucer of rice pudding, custard or fruit. Supper (6 p. m.), slice of bread and butter, saucer of uncooked cereal and cream, saucer of fruit and cream. "These meals," says the editor of The Jungle, "if cheerfully and slowly put away, will absolutely cure dyspepsia. If the person who eats them will also abstain from too much money making, will sleep with his windows open, take cold baths in the morning and play some outdoor games one hour a day, he will find himself forever immune from colds and sore throat, stomach troubles, alcoholic, nicotine and other abnormal cravings, nervous disorders, insomnia, ill temper, misanthropy, philosophical pessimism and political conservatism."

The rich fellows, despite the loud-mouthed utterances of the political wise men, who instruct the laborers and farmers, do a great deal of good with their money that could in no other way be obtained by the body politic. Here is something that is going on up at Mr. J. P. Morgan's fine Madison avenue residence. That gentleman has begun the tearing down of a house worth $85,000, once owned by William E. Dodge, and in admirable shape. This house stands between Mr. Morgan's home, at the corner of Thirty-sixth street, and that of his son, on the corner of Thirty-seventh street. The three-story building which, exclusive of the land is assessed at $85,000, conceals the view from Madison avenue of the magnificent white marble library building which Mr. Morgan erected in the rear of his home. On the plot where the building now stands and between his home and the home of his son Mr. Morgan will lay out an Italian garden, with fountains and flower beds. This will give an unobstructed view of the library building and will be beautiful in itself.

Mr. Morgan's plan calls for the rebuilding of the north side of his house, which backed against the Dodge house. The brick walls will be replaced by stone, and this work is now under way. There will be an entrance to the garden from this side of the house and also to the library building in the rear. And so the public, the poor man, the little children, the rich passerby, the fine lady and the servant, will all have a free look upon a place of loveliness, on which the owner will have lavished thousands of dollars to make pretty and attractive to the eye of the most cultivated or the least refined, and throw the view that costs so much money open to the public, so that they may see a beauty spot that will be a joy forever in their memories.

There is a great deal of this kind of work and practical benevolence being done in this city, and indeed all over the country, by men who have had ability and good fortune, and with their accumulated riches have turned towards the people and enriched them with what the people with their own resources could never have secured. If our cities are to be made beautiful, as the cry is now, it must be with the money of the benevolently inclined rich men, and it is rarely they fail to respond when the need is made known to them. Without doubt Mr. Morgan's gift to the people will be followed by others, until the metropolis is full of places made beautiful for the masses to look upon.

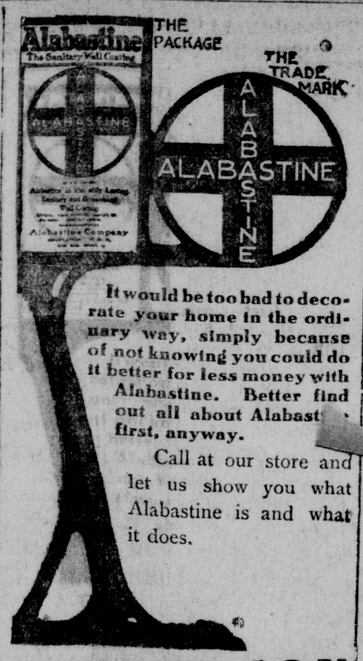

Stannard Dow Butler, minister of Christ Universalist church, of Middletown, N. Y., is probably the first minister of the Gospel in this country who has ever laid the corner stone for a cigar factory. This factory is being erected by Nathan D. Mills, a wealthy parishoner of Christ church. He is Master of Hoffman lodge of Masons, of which Mr. Butler is chaplain. The minister was requested to lay the corner stone, and he did so with the following unique words:

"Some may question the propriety of my participation in these exercises. I am here under a temporary spell of selfishness As a cigarmaker Mr. Mills is busy in an attempt to keep the fires burning. As a Universalist minister it is my business to put them out. The greater his prosperity, therefore, the longer my tenure of office and the larger my salary. There is more nicotine, more mischief, and, I am told, more satisfaction, in his brand of cigars than in any other. Anticipating for Mr. Mills, therefore, a greater prosperity and for myself, as a result thereof, a larger salary, I respectfully dedicate this building."

There is so much that is inspiring in the atmosphere of New York, and things are done here on such a big scale, that it is not surprising that many of those who prosper by coming in touch with the life of New York, and who share in its prosperity, when they acquire the means return to the great city some of the favors they have received from it and do their part in making it still greater than it was before. Mme. Lillian Nordica is one of these. She has been a welcome artist, one whose coming has been awaited with interest and desire, and money has flowed into her purse from the generous people of New York without stint. She now proposes to return some of it with mighty big interest by establishing on the banks of the Hudson a replica of the Bayreuth festival. In an admirably located spot she will establish this remarkable festival, and make it a center of musical interest for both Americans and foreigners. She has already expended a hundred thousand dollars in securing the property, and can have millions for just asking for them. In this manner do those who have profited by the musica desire of New York's citizens, at least some of them, return to her the worth of the money they have received.

The site is twenty-nine miles from New York, and the theatre will have a heating capacity of 2,000 persons, but by an arrangement will have an unlimited capacity, as it will embrace the whole hillside. The building is to be a reduplication of the Wagner building at Bayreuth, and the buildings which are to form the institute of music will be constructed on similar architectural lines An open air theatre is to be a feature, and in it will be presented not only musical drama, but Shakespearean plays

Quickest to act of all those who saw the peril of James Byrnes, 3 years old, as he stood in the path of a south-bound Eighth avenue car, was a girl of 7 years who had been playing with the boy in front of his home. He did not see the car until the motorman clanged the gong. The terrified child halted between the rails. His little playmate ran towards him, while men and women faltered, as if transfixed with fear. The girl caught him in her arms and tried to raise him, but an instant before the car was upon them her grip relaxed and she fell back. The fender struck the boy, the wheels passed over him, killing him instantly, and the car was stopped. Scores who had witnessed the tragedy were apparently frenzied. The girl was lost in the crowd that surged forward.

RAISING BABIES BY CHART.

An Addition to the Schedule for Which the Nurse Wasn't Even Grateful.

We let machines, in the form of nurses and governesses, raise our children under printed directions, tacked upon the walls. And some mothers are proud of the completeness of their thraldom to these charts—actually proud because their babies are "schedule" youngsters.

The other day I was shown a chart—a business-like, austere product of some psuedo-scientist's brain and printers' ink.

"Isn't it complete?" said the near-mother. "Read it."

I read: "Aerated milk, nine a. m. Scraped one-fourth orange, 9:30 a. m. Pasteurized milk, ten a. m. Slice of health toast, one-sixteenth ounce, 10:15 a. m. Modified milk, three ounces, 15:45 a. m. Walk 18 steps, 11 a. m. Two teaspoons distilled water, 11:15 a. m."

The rest of the chart was similar to this.

"It is complete," said I, "but I should like to edit the next one they get out."

She opened her eyes and raised her brows. (You know the way superior people, especially the recently-superior kind, do it—so's you get a taste in your mouth right away as if she had handed you a grape-fruit to eat, without sugar.)

"By putting in a line right here," I said, refusing to be frozen by her manner. "12:30 to one o'clock. Love baby a little."

She didn't even thank me for the suggestion—actually, she didn't. Women are peculiar propositions—What? —May Bohemian.

POLICE DOGS OF VIENNA.

Experiments So Far Have Only Proved Qualified Success.

Some interesting experiments were made recently with police dogs in the Schwarzenburg park, says a Vienna report. The animals used were German sheepdogs, greatly resembling wolves. The dogs proved successful in carrying messages. They covered over half a mile in three minutes, bringing a message from an outpost, taking back an answer, and then returning to "headquarters."

A trial to illustrate the use of the animals in saving drowning persons nearly had a fatal ending. The victim was dragged by a dog across the pond in which the experiment was made, but as the animal kept his head under the water the subject of the test was half drowned when he reached the bank.

In another case a supposed burglar, who was pursued by one of the dogs, was so ferociously attacked by the animal that he had to be rescued from his captor. Archduchess Isabella after the trial ordered a number of trained police dogs for the protection of her family when living in the country.

Too Much Coffee.

A Cincinnati doctor who thinks that all the ills of the human race can be traced to the drinking of coffee and tea entered a restaurant recently and seated himself opposite an Irishman who was busying himself trying to dispose of a steaming cup of coffee.

"How often do you use coffee?" queried the doctor.

"I drink it morning, noon and night, sir."

"Don't you experience a slight dizziness of the brain on retiring at night?"

"Indeed I do, sir, very frequently."

"You have a sharp pain through the temples and in and around the eyes?"

"Right you are," replied the Irishman.

"You are possessed with a drowsiness when you awake in the morning, and your head often aches and feels very heavy?"

"Right again," answered the Irishman, still sipping his coffee.

"Well, then," exclaimed the doctor, sitting erect in his chair, "aren's you now convinced that the coffee is the cause?"

"Is that so?" said the Irishman, in astonishment. "Faith I always thought it was the whisky."—What to Eat.

Public Spiritetd Thugs.

A man was coming up from Chunchen province with a sum of money which had been subscribed for the payment of the public debt. He was met by robbers, who took the money and started away. He called after them that the money was a subscription to the fund for the raising of the debt, whereupon they came back and handed him the money and begged his pardon for their mistake, and then gave him ten yen extra as a contribution on their own part. He asked their names to publish in the papers, but they said they did not want to obtain notoriety in that way, and declined, but said they were glad to pay something toward helping the country.—Korean News.

S.S.S. DRIVES OUT RHEUMATISM

The cause of Rheumatism is a sour, acid condition of the blood, brought about by indigestion, chronic constipation, and the accumulation in the system of refuse matter which the natural eliminative organs have failed to carry out. This refuse or waste matter ferments and sours, generating uric acid which is absorbed into the blood and distributed to all parts of the body, and Rheumatism gets possession of the system. One may also be born with a predisposition or tendency to Rheumatism, because like all blood diseases it can be transmitted from parent to child. The aches and pains of the disease are only symptoms which you may scatter or relieve with liniments, plasters, blisters, etc., or deaden with opiates. As soon, however, as such treatment is left off or there is any exposure to cold or dampness, or after an attack of indigestion or constipation, the wandering pains, sore muscles and joints, and tender places on the flesh return, and the sufferer finds that he has merely checked the symptoms while the real cause of the disease remains in the blood. Rheumatism can never be cured while the blood remains saturated with irritating, pain-producing uric acid poison. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism by driving the cause out of the blood. It thoroughly cleanses the blood and renovates the circulation by neutralizing the acids and expelling all foreign matter from the system. S. S. S. stimulates and invigorates the blood so that instead of a weak, sour stream, constantly depositing acrid and corrosive matter in the muscles, joints, nerves and bones, the body is soothed and nourished by rich, health-sustaining blood, which completely and permanently cures Rheumatism. S. S. S. is composed of roots, herbs and barks which possess both purifying and tonic properties—just what is needed in every case of Rheumatism. CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE.

Jabez Enjoyed the Pone Pudding and the Cat Got the Punishment.

The late Senator Pugh, of Alabama, practiced law for many years in Eufaula. A Eufaula man said of him the other day:

"In an eloquent speech on circumstantial evidence I once heard Senator Pugh drive home the danger of this sort of evidence with a good story.

"He said that a Eufaula woman made one of those corn pone puddings for which the ladies of our state are She put the pudding on a shelf to cool and then she went out to have a dress fitted. Her little son Jabez was left alone in the house.

"Jabez played with his toys till he got hungry. Then he put a chair beneath the shelf, climbed up and ate all of the delicious pone pudding that his small interior would possibly hold. To conclude, he did a strange thing.

"He caught the cat, dabbled her four paws in the soft yellow custard in the bottom of the dish and then set her down. She scampered through the kitchen into the dining-room and parlor and thence out of doors. On the bare boards of the kitchen, on the dining-room's red carpet and on the parlor's carpet of green she left impartially small golden footprints, very neat, very conspicuous. The boy smiled softly to himself.

"And that evening, on his father's return he heard a wild scampering below, the banging of the front door, a terrific mewing and the sharp crack of a rifle.

"Then little Jabez smiled softly to himself again.

"'Ah, me!' he said, 'there goes another victim of circumstantial evidence.'"

DODGED A PEACE OFFERING.

Pugnacious Man Refused to Accept the Loving Cup.

"We are in a peculiar predicament," said the man about town. "By 'we' I mean the members of a club that meets once a month for dinner, just to promote good fellowship. Our president, who founded the club, is sort of a crank. He's a good fellow, in a way, but wants to run things to suit himself and sometimes we have trouble with him. Not long ago we had a row that nearly disrupted the club. We all thought he was to blame and told him so; but after a while the outburst died down and then we thought we'd like to show him there was no permanent hard feeling, so we decided to give him a loving cup, as he is a valuable man to all of us.

"By an accident he heard of the secret and at once wrote us that no man or men on earth could give him a loving cup—that he wouldn't accept one, least of all from us, after the scrap we just had. We all went to him or wrote to him urging him to let the presentation take place, but he steadily refused. Then we told him he'd have to accept it; that it was all ready and it would break up the club if he didn't take it. He said he was willing to resign, but have a loving cup he would not; that if we attempted to present it to him he not only would leave the club, but cut every one of us off his list of acquaintances. He won out. We can't afford to lose him, so we are trying to cancel the order for the cup."

COUNTED TWINS AS UNIT.

Grandmother Found It Impossible to Disassociate Them.

The Harmon twins looked so much alike as babies that their parents could scarcely tell them apart. As they became older it became evident that to grandmother Harmon at least the twins were a unit.

"You were asking me how much the twins weigh," said grandmother Harmon to a neighbor. "When I went out that afternoon I put one of them on the scales at the grocery, and found they weigh just 26 pounds."

"Do they always weigh exactly the same?" inquired the neighbor, and grandmother Harmon looked quite impatient.

"The twins?" she said. "Of course; why not?"

The neighbor had no reason to give, but she rebelled a few days later when in answer to her inquiry grandmother Harmon said:

"'Where are the twins?' O, they got a cinder in one of their eyes and their mother has taken them down to the oculist's to have it removed, they were missing so over it."—Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

CHAPTER ON FASHIONS

THE SUMMER GIRL'S OUTFIT DESCRIBED BY CATHERINE MANN—PAYZANT.

SHANTING FROCKS NOW MADE UP

How to Make a Pretty Walking Skirt —Vests Quite a Feature for the New Summer Gowns Most Desirable.

Special to Democrat-Sentinel.

Sedalia, Mo., June 15.—The shanting frocks that are being made up for summer are very attractive. The garnitures that are most a la mode is delet lace—the coarse kind that closely resembles net worked over. It is really a modification of old-world mosquito netting with finer mesh. Used for yokes, for panels of sleeve or skirt, the fillet is charming. A dress does not need a large quantity to secure a good effect. The plaid and striped shantings are fashionable no less than those of solid color. The fabric seems to take all colors in dyes, and is most seductive in nattier blue, in groseille or gooseberry, in cyclamen pink and in serpent green. The new color, rouille, appears to embrace all the others, for it might be almost any thing one chooses to call it, bordering closely upon buff. Cotton goods of it are about as pretty as silk or woolen.

Quantities of rusty gold are put upon the summer gowns, whether in braids or embroidery. The idea is a pretty one, for, harmonizing with everything, it lights up a color, and, paradoxical as it may sound, robs it at the same time of any loudness, and a spring gown often appears too thin even when the warm days of summer have come. Some silver is in evidence, but for popularity it has no place with gold.

Courtiers are putting so much garniture about the armholes of corsages that it is almost absurd. Often the round piece stands out a full quarter of a yard under the sleeve. This is effective and agreeable for the slender woman, but for the woman who longs to be rid of forty pounds—more or less—it is poor consolation; for, as a matter of fact, extra bouffancy increases the figure, even a little of it, to on alarming degree. Most of the styles invented, past and present, have been for the Lydia Languish type, and the beauty of plumpness has no influence on the scheme of designer and draper.

Vests are quite a feature of the enw sumbmer gowns. Any amount of work is put upon them, though we see those of striped or plaid shanting ornamented solely with smoked or plain white pearl buttons. The most chic, probably, are those in embroidered pique. Oftentimes the vest is made with a cotton back and sleeveless; and, again, it is stitched in under the arms of corsage, to be removed when cleaned. The scarlet and green vests are both very elegant, and with morning costumes we see very many of them.

Coarse alpaca, resembling granite cloth, will be much used for traveling. This is self trimmed, is made with a trotteuse skirt, as the French call the new walking skirt, and is generally worn with a long, plain coat with pockets across the bust. When buttons are employed it will be those covered with cloth, but big white pearl buttons are so elegant and are so becoming, so sought for, that more than probable by midsummer they will be largely used by all.

Every day now sees more new fashions in the smart street costumes, especially those intended for afternoon wear. The plainer tailored gowns for the morning wear are all on the same order, more or less, but the more elegant fashions, suitable for the afternoon, are to be seen in great variety. The three-piece costume—skirt, waist and coat to correspond—are this year considered the smartest. The coat is short and more or less fancifully trimmed. Sometimes the gown is of one material and the coat of another, and at present the fancy silk coats are most popular. To be original seems to be the aim and end of the designer. They try various methods to obtain effective results. Cloth or veiling skirts with short braided cloth jackets find many enthusiasts who exclaim over the beauty and originality of design.

Veiling gowns, with heavily braided silk or cloth jackets, are among the latest fashions, and here again there is opportunity for color schemes without end. A brown veiling, made up over a much lighter shade of brown, has a cloth jacket of braid; the belt, if there is a belt worn, is of a dark orange color, the only tint of contrast among the different browns. Of necessity the braided jackets are expensive, for the work is done by hand; but, again, it is possible to adapt this same fashion. There can be less braid and wider used, and the pattern chosen can be of a simpler design.

Colored silk coats, with hats to match, are again to be in fashion. Certainly the style is an effective one, and at the same time is practical, for with a smart little coat and hat a gown that in itself lacks quality, that renders it ineffective, can be transformed into a most charming costume. Last summer the fashion was attempted, but was so badly carried out that it met with little success. Now it is being revived again, but with mannish changes, and bids fair to be popular. Again, all the new shades of brown can be utilized, and the brown hats for the moment are supreme. But they are being closely followed by the new shades of blue, which are effective, and it will not be long before every woman thinks it essential to her happiness to wear a blue hat with a blue jacket. The gown itself in that case should be of blue, but of a lighter shade.

Another striking feature of the present modes, both for tailor gowns and other costumes, will be the universal prevalence of stripes, chiefly, perhaps, in black and white and in grey and white, which last is the newer combination. We see them on all sides and in every material, running simply in a downward direction, sometimes horizontally, or again diagonally, or yet again with carefully mitred points. A vast amount of ingenuity has been expended on the designing of these striped gowns, and in many instances they are trimmed only with wide straps of the materials, in which the stripes run horizontally, bordered with other strappings of the narrower width, cut on the cross so that the stripes come out diagonally, and in this way form a very effective scheme of decoration. Shantung silk, with stripes in chestnut brown on cream silk, will make delightful frocks for the summer, and galated stripes in cotton will be largely worn, as well as the dainty muslins, with fairly wide stripes in pale shades of pink, green, mauve and blue on a white grund.

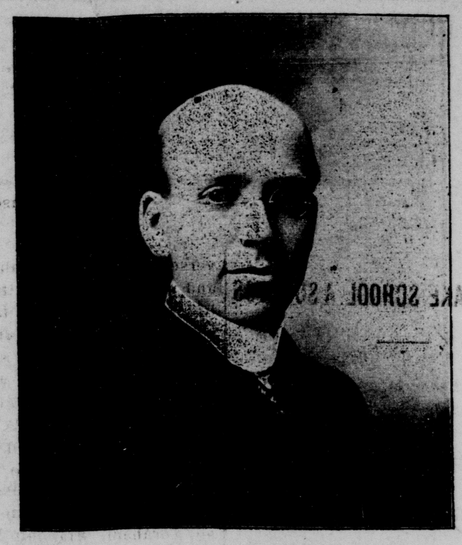

Plain skirts with much trimmed coats are considered extremely smart this season, and are made in many different colors and fabrics. The light weights in cloth and serge in solid color are the most generally used for this style, and both light and dark color is in demand. There is always a demand for white and blue gowns, in this order, and strange as it may seem, when it is remembered how long the fashion has been popular, the white and blue costume in serge has not lost its hold on popular fancy. A very effective serge suit in white has a plain skirt, but so pefectly is it cut and does it hang that it draws attention and admiration at glance.

Te jacket has a loose back; indeed, is loose fitting back and front, and yet is cut to indicate the lines of the figure, and is in the sack coat order. Short, it yet hides the waistline and is slashed at the side seam.

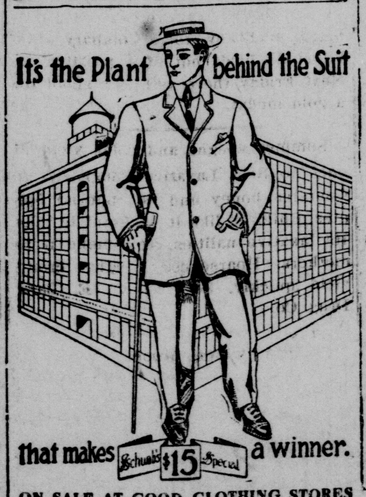

It is trimmed elaborately with braid of the same color, unless a color like dark blue has been chosen for the gown, in which case the braiding can be done in black. This model, however, looks best made up in white or some light or bright shade. The new reds are attractive, but the greys and different tones of white are fashionable—most fashionable of all. This model may be copied both in silk and linen, as so much use of braiding and lace can be employed to make it effective and expensive.

Adapting the models to different materials is an art in itself and one that anyone with a little care and thought can easily learn. Braiding is used on all kinds of materials, so one can not go far astray in copying a cloth gown, and one is quite safe in the use of embroidery and lace. When it is remembered how silk is used on cloth and cloth on silk, velvet or flimsy lace, cloth on the muslins, silks on the linens, where is the spot that one can go wrong on if figure, good taste and coloring be well looked to?

Many of the pretty walking skirts this season are of voile or Panama cloth, plain and figured. And innumerable soft, plain materials in all the beautiful spring colorings, plaids, stripes and mixtures are now used in the greatest profusion. Any of these will be effective, made up with pleats pressed into position from there to the hem. The model for this style was in dull green figured voile, trimmed around the bottom with bias bands of taffeta silk. The imported models all show many pleated designs—side pleated, box pleated and pleated in clusters, or with pleated panel set in. These pleats give such a good opportunity to secure the desired fulness around the bottom of the skirt that they are very popular. —Catherine Mann-Payzant.

Photographing the Voice.

After the problem of obtaining a record of the human voice had once been solved by the invention of the phonograph, many inventors turned their attention toward some suitable process for photographing spoken words. Though a phonograph record constitutes a true picture of the voice, it is not distinct enough to be deciphered by mere inspection.

The photographic phonograph or photophone invented by Herr Huhmer affords a far more characteristic graphical rendering of spoken words. In this apparatus an electric arc lamp inserted in the circuit of a microphone is made to give out a radiation the intensity of which corresponds to the sound vibration in the microphone, this radiation being fixed photographically on the film running past in front of a narrow slot. By a convenient inversion of the whole process, the original sound can then be reproduced from the photographic record.

Truth.

Truth is the courage to be honest, and in general the attitude of a man toward facts will depend upon the training he has had and the company he has kept. Dr. Johnson, who was so careful to tell the truth and to state it accurately that all the eminent men of his time who were his intimates—of his "school"—were noted for their veracity and attention to the truth, gave this counsel:

"Accustom your children to a strict attention to truth, even in the most minute particulars. If a thing happens at one window, and they, when relating it, say that it happened at another, do not let it pass, but instantly check them; you do not know where deviations from truth will end."

Making a Bad Matter Worse.

In a little village church where the organ power was furnished by the strong arms of the janitor the choir got into trouble one morning during the singing of the opening anthem. Suddenly the organ ceased making a sound. The choir voices also partly stopped, and the situation was not improved by a strong but muffled voice coming from behind the organ, saying so loudly that the congregation as well as the singers heard: "Sing like thunder, boys. The bellers is busted!"

Easily Made Skirts.

Half the time may be saved and a much smoother fit be secured by first plaiting each gore according to directions before sewing seams together. All plaits may be machine stitched excepting hip gore, where all the fitting should be done by simply lapping plait on that seam. Paste gores only as far as hip length until fitting is done. Then sew seams on under side from hip down to do not press open, but press in the plait that comes on that seam. There will be no puckers at seams and a full plait skirt may be made in half the time it takes when first sewing the gores together and then plaiting in the old way.

Spots on Books.

Ink spots or writing may be removed from a book by applying spirits of salts diluted with five or six times their bulk of water, which may be washed off in two or three minutes with clear water. A solution of oxalic, citric, or tartaric acid will answer the same purpose, as none of them will affect the printing. Grease spots may be removed by laying powdered pipe clay on both sides of the paper and applying an iron as hot as may be without scorching the paper. This will also take grease spots from colored leather bindings.

Protect Rugs.

If one has not a room set apart for sewing and must use either dining or some other room which has a rug, take a sheet and spread on the floor under the machine and around the corner where sewing (a few tacks will hold in place nicely) to catch all the threads and pieces which cannot help falling. This easily can be lifted up in the evening, and your rug is as fresh and clean as when the sewing was commenced.

Frozen Strawberries.

Mash a quart of berries and add a syrup made by boiling a cup of sugar with half a pint of water for five minutes. Put in the juice of a lemon and strain. Freeze solid and pack into a mold; turn out and garnish with whole berries.—Harper's Bazar.

Boil Gravy.

In warm weather any gravies or soups that are left from the preceding day should be boiled up and poured into clean pans. This is particularly necessary where vegetables have been added to the preparation, as it soon turns sour. In cooler weather every other day will be often enough to warm up these things.

Sew Short to Long Gloves.

To sew short silk gloves to long gloves with fingers worn out, cut off lower part of long gloves, rip machine stitching on short gloves, and sew both together in seam.

Not Worth the Effort.

"Look out!" exclaimed the man who had seen another bravely rescued from the water. "Handle that fellow carefully or he might revive."

"Brute!" ejaculated the rescuers.

"Brute, nothing," rejoined the first speaker; "I saw him rocking the boat."

Senator Hale smiled.

"Perhaps not," he said; "and again. But did you ever hear about the temperance lecturer? No?

"Well, you must know that there was a temperance lecturer in Maine who came to Ellsworth and lectured. He hit out pretty hard from the shoulder at these so-called moderate drinkers and at the end of his remarks an Ellsworth man took him aside and said in an aggrieved tone:

"'Look here, Jim; I am a moderate drinker, as all the town knows, and to many people it is going to seem as if a good part of your lecture was pointed at me. What did you want to do it for, Jim? You never saw me with more on board than I could carry.'

"'What's that?' said the temperance lecturer.

"'You never saw me with a bigger load than I could carry, did you?'

"The lecturer frowned.

"'Well, no,' he said, slowly, 'but I have seen you when I thought you'd have done better to go twice for it.'"

What Do You Drink?

Every neat housewife and person loves to think that the water they drink is absolutely pure. When a patient gets over typhoid fever, the doctor prescribes distilled water. Why is it, if it isn't because the water works, cisterns and deep wells contain more or less impurities in water.

This shows a drop of deep well water magnified. So you see you can't tell what you are drinking.

This shows the same water after passing through our filter.

You ought to see the dirt and filth that can be extracted from seemingly pure water by our filter in an ordinary water cooler as seen in cut.

I will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative and my book on either dyspepsia, the heart or the kidneys. Troubles of the stomach, heart or kidneys are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean stomach weakness always. And the heart, and kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write me today for sample and free book. To Can String Beans.

The beans must be young and newly gathered. If toughened by long-keeping or if old and stringy, they are not available for our purpose. With a sharp knife remove the strings from both sides of the beans. As you do this let the prepared beans fall into ice cold water. Now cut them into inch lengths, still dropping the bits into water. Put over the fire covered with cold water, slightly salted and peppered. Boil until soft, but not broken. Transfer to heated jars, cover with boiling salted water from the kettle and seal.

Sauce for Roast Meats.

A quarter of a pint of water, a sprig of parsley, the juice of one lemon, pepper, salt and one ounce and a half of butter.

Put the butter into a stewpan with a sprig of parsley, chopped fine; the juice of one lemon, strained; season with pepper and salt and a quarter of a pint of water; set it over the fire for about ten minutes until hot or just on the boil, and serve with roast meat.

Gingerbread.

One cupful of molasses, one-half cup of butter, one-half cupful of brown sugar, two eggs, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of soda dissolved in one cupful of hot water, one teaspoonful each of ginger and cinnamon, three cupfuls of flour. One cupful of chopped raisins and citron may be added if desired. Bake in well-greased pan in moderate oven.

Washing Berries.

Take an ordinary tin milk pan, a hammer, and nail and punch holes all over the bottom. Put in your berries, let the water run over them in the sink, and all the sand and dirt will wash right through those holes. Put in holes from inside of pan, so that it will stand a little way from the floor of sink.

The bites and stings of insects, tan, sunburn cuts, burns and bruises are relieved at once with Pinesalve Carsion caused when gas escaped from draws out inflamation. Try it. Price 25. Sold by W. E. Bard Drug Co.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS' WORK

WEEKLY LETTER OF COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT GEORGE L. SHEPARD.

HOW TO MAKE SCHOOL A SUCCESS

Five Most Essential Points to That End, as Seen by Different Persons interested in the Good Work.

We have received a few more answers to our questions sent to more than fifty of our Sunday school workers. The most popular reply thus far is "Punctuality." When the replies come in from those who are tardy in their answers, the result may be different. We publish this week some excellent replies. Some do not wish their names attached. We shall always endeavor to comply with the wishes of our friends in this matter. We have some exceedingly interesting letters in reserve for future use. We publish a letter from an earnest Sunday school worker for many years past. Such letters are very encouraging and helpful. One of the first and best replies received is the one immediately following:

Dear Brother: In reply to your request as to what I consider the five most essential things in the conduct of a Sunday school, would say:

1. A hearty co-operation of pastor, superintendent and teachers.
2. Personal application of the lesson by teachers and review at close of the school.
3. Especial emphasis with regard to song service.
4. Teachers who are fully consecrated and deeply spiritual.
5. Punctuality in attendance, and an earnest endeavor to promote all the interests of the school.

So many things suggest themselves as demanding perhaps equal attention, and then they divide and subdivide, until one hardly knows where to place the emphasis the more strongly. I remain, your fellow-worker—Alonzo Garber.

Mr. Garber is superintendent of the Epworth M. E. Sunday school.

Here is an excellent reply from one whose name is withheld by request:

1. A good superintendent and officers who will give much time to the work, who can plan new things, with executive ability to carry them out.
2. Teachers who are enthusiastic, who will give their hearty co-operation to the superintendent in every new method to benefit the school.
3. Punctuality; superintendent and teachers should be early enough to meet the scholars as they come in.
4. Plenty of preparation on the lesson.
5. Never fall into a rut. Program could be changed a little every Sunday.

1. A superintendent and corps of teachers that are competent and in earnest.
2. An enthusiastic parent back of every pupil.
3. A preacher that is in earnest.
4. A suitably equipped church.
5. "Singable songs."—Rev. J. F. Caskey.

1. Have spiritual teachers and superintendent; people who are in touch with Christ.
2. Good music.
3. Have a good talk at the last with whole school, trying to bring out a point of the lesson that will help in our every day life.
4. Have Sunday school room attractive.
5. Have whole school repeat Golden Text.—Mrs. J. R. Mize, superintendent Second Congregational Sunday school.

1. Unanimity or hearty co-operation.
2. Opening on time, with all officers, teachers and scholars present.
3. Teachers with the love of souls in the heart and knowledge of the subject in the head.
4. Recruitment.
5. Attention to absentees.—Rev. A. A. Boyd.

We close our article this week with the letter previously referred to:

Dear Sir and Brother: After noting your suggestion in the Democrat-Sentinel directed to representatives of the Sunday schools embraced in the Sunday school union, I feel that I should resist the temptation to pass your suggestion regarding the five most essential points in the twentieth century Sunday school, with nothing more than a mental comment of approval. Although not a member of your union, the value of the idea impresses one with its wisdom.

Those of us who have taken part in the irregular and discorded methods of the "has been" view with wonder the dawn of a new spiritual day. The lessons of the past five months have enabled us to understand a very little of the patient, ceaseless thought, design and effort of the Almighty to harmonize the elements of the universe, give to it durability, stability and mobility; fit it in its vastness for life to bud, intellect to bloom, and spirit commune with divinity. Then as we compare our span of three score years and ten with the ages divinity took, by example, to teach us how to grow spirits competent to be awarded the diploma of grace—six hundred years to produce an Enoch, six hundred more to produce a Noah, a thousand more to produce an Abraham, who left his home and many gods to find a home where he could enjoy the favor of one, the Universal Divinity, and who would teach his household, including his slaves. Till then none such had lived; to make it a permanent transmissable quality of the new race to know but one God. * * * To me comes the conviction that the nursing of Moses, Samuel and Jesus gives the key to spiritual life or death. Moses nursed it from the blood affected by the earnest soul of Achebed; Samuel also from Hannah, and Mary "wondered and pondered these things in her heart."

1. The human animal craves activity.
2. The human intellect searches all avenues for food, and has an inherent preference, but is pliable and touchable.
3. Warmth, harmony and rythm.
4. Think, do and carry.
5. Listen, the wireless telephone.

Sincerely yours—A. Dow.

SPLIT, BRITTLE, DULL HAIR.

All Come From Dandruff, Which Is Caused by a Germ.

Split hair, hard hair, lusterless hair, brittle hair, falling hair, all owe their origin to dandruff, which is caused by a measly little microbe that burrows into the scalp, throwing up the cuticle into dandruff scales and sapping the vitality of the hair at the root, casing the several diseased conditions of the hair till it finally falls out. Modern science has discovered a remedy to destroy the dandruff microbe, which is combined in Newbro's Herpicide, the delightful hair dressing. Allays itching instantly and makes hair soft as silk. Take no substitute; nothing "just as good." Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to the Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. Two sizes, 50c and $1. W. E. Bard Drug Co., special agents.

A Party on the Porch.

Miss Grace McKenzie entertained the Friday 500 club Friday afternoon, the guests assembling on the porch, which was beautifully decorated with the national colors in honor of Flag day, while the tally cards were tiny flags. Miss Louise Phipps won the club prize, a pair of silk hose. The guest prize was won by Mrs. Frank Plumer, and the consolation prize went to Miss Stella Hurley. Miss McKenzie served fruit salad in orange cups, pickles, olives, bread and butter sandwiches, Nabisco wafers and ices.

WHEN NEWS IS SCARCE

"Nothing in the Paper Today" Good Thing Sometimes.

Frequently you pick up one of the local papers, says the Nevada Mail, and after glancing at the head lines wearily thrust it aside, remarking, "Nothing in the paper today."

Did you ever stop to think what that phrase—"nothing in the paper today"—means? It means that in the day or week just passed that no misfortune has befallen anoyne in our city; that no fire has wiped out a neighbor's worldly goods; that the grim angel of death has crossed no threshold of a friend; that no man, driven by liquor, hatred or fear, has taken the life of a fellow human; that no poor devil, haunted by the past or the misdeeds of some other, has crossed the great divide by his own hand. So the next time you pick up a paper that doesn't announce a tragedy give a little thanks instead of grumbling because there is no news.

MORGAN AND THE STUTTERER.

Former Relaxed at the Clever Retort of the Latter.

A young reporter on the New York Sun, who stuttered fearfully, was sent one day to try to get a statement from Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan.

"Who and what are you?" demanded Mr. Morgan.

In moments of surprise or nervous excitement the reporter's stammering always became acute, so he stood with jaws locked, vainly trying to speak.

Mr. Morgan began to fume, and finally he sputtered:

"What in the devil are you?"

The reporter's sense of humor did not share the clogging up of his speech, and, after much facial contortion, he managed to gurgle out:

"I-I-I—aaaaam an elocutionist."

Mr. Morgan saw the joke, he grimly relaxed and when the reporter's speech-consciousness returned he got the statement.—Saturday Evening Post.

When Abby Cleaned Up

By Sophie Swett

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

"Seliny's down with a fever," said Hiram Rogers, slowly, after another swallow of coffee.

"You don't say!" exclaimed his wife. "A fever? Well, I don't know as it is to be wondered at. I won't say that she ain't neat, seeing she's your only sister, but she does live so budgetty and cluttered up."

"She's so rheumatic, it must be hard for her to keep her house in order," said Abby Rogers, aged 18, from the end of the table. "I saw in through the window once, and I just ached to get in and clear up for her."

Abby had a firm, round, pink-cheeked face and the crinkly hair that is said to denote energy.

"How came you to look in at the window?" demanded her father, sharply.

"I went to get the yellow kitten out of her pear tree. She helped me, and seemed very kind, but when I thanked her she said she had only done it because she didn't want a Rogers kitten in her pear tree."

Hiram Rogers chuckled. "That's Seliny all over," he said.

"Poor Seliny! I can't say that I ever thought 'twas just right for your father to cut her off with $500 because she wouldn't give up Alvin Getchell," said Mrs. Rogers, reflectively to her husband. "Then he gave her up, and there she was without either her beau or her share of the property. I should have thought your father would have relented when Alvin Getchell up and married Martha Hyde."

"We always meant to do something towards making it up to her, Horace and I," said Hiram Rogers, unwontedly communicative, and reaching for another doughnut, "if she hadn't been so cantankerous, and the property hadn't run down so. We've had about all we could do to get along." He shuffled a little uneasily as he spoke.

"I suppose Jane Leggett is nursing Aunt Seliny," said Abby, slowly. "She's old and almost blind. She won't make things any neater."

"Land! I don't suppose your Aunt Seliny would let anybody meddle with her things, anyway," said Mrs. Rogers, rising from the table.

"'Riah! Uriah!" called Abby, clearly but cautiously, at the back door. Her brother Uriah, 17, and as tall as his father, thrust his head out at the hen-house door, and obeyed Abby's mysteriously beckoning finger.

"I want you to go down to Aunt Seliny's with me," she whispered.

Uriah was apt to argue—and agree. Abby looked back as she climbed the orchard wall and saw, as she expected, that he was following her.

Jane Leggett lived at the poorhouse, when there was no one who would give her a home for her care in sickness.

"I will take the responsibility—if you will please say nothing," said Abby.

Abby fell upon the kitchen first. "Who would have thought that it was a kitchen, with a box or budget in every corner?" she said, with uplifted hands.

Abby restored the boxes and budgets to their places conscientiously, after she had cleaned the corners where they were piled—in the kitchen. In the shed she was not quite so scrupulous. She said to Uriah that they might have a bonfire and burn the rubbish that was piled up in the loft—moldy feather pillows, moth-eaten rags and broken baskets and boxes.

The "loft" was formed of three or four rough boards placed across the beams of the unfinished shed. It was covered thickly with dust and festooned with cobwebs.

"Oh, why does she keep such a place?" wailed Abby. "It hasn't been touched for years, and it prevents the air from coming in through that little high window. Uriah, let us take the boards down!"

Uriah did as he was bidden without remonstrance.

Aunt Seliny's fever was a slow one. It was four weeks after the cleaning day that Jane Leggett was, one morning, discovered rheumatically climbing the orchard wall and breathlessly struggling up the orchard slope.

"She's 'most had a fit!" she announced. "She wa'n't well enough to get up, but she would, she was so anxious about her things. She knew somebody had been meddling with her things, and she's been harping on it ever since. So get up she would, and I had to tell her that you had been and cleaned up for her. She's going on about her attic. She says you hove out her attic."

"Her attic?" echoed Abby, amazed.

"That place that she had up aloft in the shed. She said 'twas all the attic she had, and nobody wa'n't nothing without an attic. She keeps wringing her hands and saying she could have borne anything but to have her attic hove out. She calculates to go to Carmel Monday, to see her second cousin Mirandy, that's sent for her to come. She hasn't been away from home for 15 years, but she says she's so upset by the loss of her attic that it doesn't make any difference what becomes of her."

Abby dropped upon the window seat, as Jane Leggett hurried back down the orchard slope. The firm, rounded cheeks under the sweeping cap were not pink, but scarlet. And the sweeping cap became a thinking cap for as much as an hour.

"Father, Darius Blake says carpentering is slack," began Abby, and her mother pulled her dress to stop her.

"Don't go at him that way; you'll give him a stroke, or something," she whispered. But Abby went on, in spite of her mother's warning twitch.

"So he will work at a low price. And I want Aunt Seliny to have an attic."

"To have what?" exclaimed Hiram Rogers, from his favorite seat on the woodbox beside the stove. Abby told the whole story.

"Darius Blake says that for $300 he would raise the roof and make an attic all over her little house." Abby went straight on, breathlessly, although her father did not look up. "There's a hundred dollars of my school money that I've saved, and I want you and Uncle Horace to give the rest."

Hiram Rogers arose slowly and went towards the door. His wife called him anxiously, as if she expected him to have a stroke then and there. He went on without a word and shut the door behind him. But it opened again after a moment.

"I'll see what Horace says, daughter," he said.

It was almost a month later that Aunt Seliny came home from Carmel. There was a glow on her seamy cheeks that looked as if the fever might be lingering, but it really was caused by a paper in her pocket—a musty, yellowed paper that second cousin Mirandy Slocomb had found in her husband's old secretary.

Abby, watching, as she did every night, saw the stage stop at Aunt Seliny's, and flow down over the orchard slope. Aunt Seliny was standing stock still in the road, blinking in amazement at the pretty dormer window that shone in the sunset light above her door.

Abby appeared before her, flushed and breathless.

"I—I felt sorry for the mischief I did—throwing out your—your attic," she stammered. "And—and father and Uncle Hiram helped me to build the new one—"

Aunt Seliny stared at her fixedly, amazedly. Then suddenly her hard face quivered and broke like a winter pool in the sun.

"I have wanted an attic terribly," she said. "My old things—"

"They're all safe up in our attic. I hope you'll come and get them yourself," said Abby, eagerly. Aunt Seliny had said that she never would set foot in the old house again.

Abby Appeared Before Her, Flushed and Breathless.

She walked into her own house and shut the door. But as Abby turned away it was opened again.

"Maybe I'll come up," said a trembling voice.

It was on a Saturday, and less than a week afterward, that she came. Abby let her in, and she walked, without a word, directly up the old, familiar attic stairs.

"I wish't you'd let me go alone," she said, quaveringly, to Abby. "There's something that I want to think out alone—amongst the old things."

When she came down, two hours after, she said that she had gathered her things together, and would send for them.

"You—you may come and see me if you're a mind to," she said, and suddenly drew Abby towards her and kissed her.

"There's a queer story afloat," said Abby, at the supper table, a week after. "It came from Mirandy Slocomb, up at Carmel. It seems that she found a will of grandfather's among her husband's papers, and it bequeathed to Aunt Seliny her share of his property. It was dated just before his death."

An ironical smile flickered about her father's mouth. "Guess we should have been apt to hear of it from Seliny," he said.

Abby went thoughtfully up into the attic, where Aunt Seliny had "thought things out." There were tiny bits of paper scattered in a corner, as if a letter had been torn up. Abby gathered them up and tried to piece them together; but it was in vain; they were so small she could only make out the heading of a legal document and her grandfather's name, "Hezekiah Rogers," in the shaking hand of an old man.

She ran down across the orchard, holding up her apronful of the bits of paper. "It isn't right! You must have your own," she said, standing rigidly upright, "a Daniel come to judgment," before Aunt Seliny.

"'Sh!" whispered the old woman. "How did you find it out? I wrote to Mirandy not to say a word! I've got you and an attic, and that's all I want."

Architectural Marvels of Middle Ages Showing Signs of Decay.

Almost every day, now, the foreign dispatches report the partial fall or the dangerous weakening of one of the famous buildings of Europe. Today it is the Vatican that is beginning to crumble, yesterday it was the Alhambra, and a dozen such announcements can be remembered before one gets back even to the recent day when the great tower in Venice came down with a crash which reechoed throughout the whole civilized world because all of that world knew about the tower.

There is really some excuse for fearing that the architectural marvels of the middle ages are nearing the limit of their endurance, and that, unless they are subjected to repairs and restorations which not many of them are likely to receive, the time will soon come when people will have to do without these visible reminders of the part of the past which forms so large a part of our history and literature. This will be a loss, indeed, and yet the restorer and the repairer are almost as much to be feared as ruthless time, and one does not call them in too eagerly, even when somebody else must pay their bills.—N. Y. Times.

Indian Sign Language.

When an Indian paints his cheeks in scarlet lines and daubs a yellow square on his forehead the world knows that he is in love.

When he covers his face with zigzag black lines upon an ochre base it is his purpose to—ah, I'm almost ashamed to say it—to get just as skated as he possibly can.

When red circles are on each cheekbone and a rectangle of blue is on the forehead the young brave is going out to steal a paleface horse.

When he paints white rings around his eyes he is running for office, he is a candidate for medicine man or councillor, and the white rings signify that he ought to be elected because he has the wisdom of the owl.—N. O. Times-Democrat.

CAUGHT THEM "CRIBBING"

Seventy-Five Applicants Supplied With Question Lists.

Kansas City, Mo., June 15.—Dr. R. A. Light, member of the Kansas state board of medical examiners, while walking about the room yesterday where 117 applicants for state certificates were busy writing answers to questions, saw a man consulting something under the desk. The physician snatched it from him. It was a complete set of questions on ten subjects. Answers were written to each in pencil.

Dr. O F Lewis, president of the board, said: "We have gathered almost seventy-five lists of questions, in which answers were already written out. Every man caught, when questioned as to how he came by the list, said he had paid $5 for the complete set."

The state board of examiners began an investigation to find the men who sold the set of examination questions. It has been discovered, Dr. Lewis said, that the sets of questions were taken from the offices of the state printing building in Topeka last Saturday.

A Russian Pastime.

If the human jaws need some occupation in the intervals of meals and gossip, says Health Culture, masticators could learn a lesson from the peasants of southern Russia, who exercise their teeth on the hard seeds of the Caspia sunflower.

There is not a suspicion of a stimulant about it, no chewing gum dyspepcia or navy plug nuisance.

It is a pastime and, incidentally, an excellent dentifrice.

HAD A SCRAP AT TIPTON

THIS TIME IT WAS DOCTOR AND EDITOR WHO HAD THE MISUNDERSTANDING.

TROUBLE AROSE OVER AN ARTICLE

Dr. S. H. Redmon and Russell Monroe, Editor of the Tipton Times, Pummeled Each Other—Doc tor Fined $25 and Costs.

Two gentlemen well known in Sedalia are written of as follows in the Bunceton Eagle of Friday:

Just as proof of the old saying that like events never happen singly, another little bout has been "pulled off" between a doctor and an editor. This time it was at Tipton.

The combatants were Dr. S. H. Redmon, one of the most prominent physicians in Central Missouri, and one who has always been held in high esteem, and Russell Monroe, the talented young editor of the Tipton Tims. The trouble took place on Tuesday morning.

Last week the Times made brief and courteous mention of a matrimonial tangle into which Dr. Redmon's son had gotten himself. The article in question was not sensational, as it might have been, but was, on the other hand, a most conservative treatment of a legitimate piece of news. Dr. Redmon, however, is said to have taken offense.

It is said the two men met at or near the Youkey home, where Mr. Youkey lay dead, and it was there that the trouble, which a little later resulted in a lively "scrap," started.

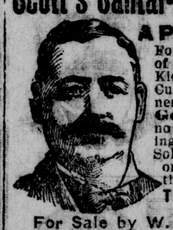

Dr. Redmon is said to have been the agressor, forcing the fight on Mr. Monroe, who at once got into action and defended himself, easily getting the better of his opponent. We are informed that Dr. Redmon was arrested and fined $25 and costs.

Central Business College Items.

Notwithstanding the hot weather Central Business college continues enrolling pupils rapidly. Several have come in from Kansas and Missouri the past week. We do not notice that the little schools starting in the smaller towns are in any way a detriment to Central Business college, for the smaller towns cannot hope to support a business college; nor can an ordinary town support more than one. As business colleges find this out from experience their proprietors close, it leaves a number of unfortunates who have started their business education, which they wish to complete, and they have learned at their own expense that the home college is sometimes a misnomer; hence come to an institution that has proven its right to exist, where they can get the best and run no risk. A number of pupils have been placed in positions the past week. One of them who was placed as teacher in a splendid business college, writes that the professor is sick and he is general manager. We are just graduating several pupils for positions at from $70 to $80 per month. Any first-class person who will place himself under my instruction, and take my advice, can be prepared for such a place and I will guarantee to assist him to such positions.

IMMIGRANTS AT WINNIPEG.

Canadian City Where Fifteen Languages Are Spoken.

Winnipeg is where they do things. This is really the place where the frontier was abolished by the real estate regicides. A kingdom is sold daily in Winnipeg, an army is marched in to occupy it over night.

The yards of the Canadian Pacific railway alone in Winnipeg have over 120 miles of trackage, and they need it. The immigrants come by battlion—Englishmen in caps, Scotchmen in bonnets, Breton French in blue coats, Germans, Swedes, Norwegians, Austrians, Mennonites, Galacians—all manner of furtive folk and wild.

There are 15 known languages in the Winnipeg schools, and a lot too late to classify. When you see a stranger you cannot tell whether or not he is within the range of human speech. You bitterly reflect only that he is one of those who have wiped out the old frontier, lost it forever to those who love the wilderness.—Outing Magazine.

THE ASYLUM SCANDAL

VINDICATION FOR DR. C. R. WOODSON, WHO RESIGNED AT ONCE.

HE WILL REMAIN UNTIL JULY 1

Downfall for Both Factions of Politicians—It Is Said That Dr. Graham of Agency, May Get the Place.

St. Joseph, Mo., June 15.—The investigation of the charges preferred against Dr. C. R. Woodson, superintendent of the state insane hospital, resulted in a downfall for both factions of the politicians who have been active for months in connection with it. Dr. Woodson was exonerated by the board of managers and then he tendered his resignation.

While this is some satisfaction to his enemies, they have gained nothing, for none of their factions will be retained at the hospital. Frank Owens, the steward, who managed the campaign against Woodson, failed of reappointment. After deliberating all day Friday, and holding many conferences at different places, the board announced its findings Friday night. Its written verdict says the charges of improper conduct between Dr. Woodson and Miss Minnie Everline have not been sustained by the evidence and both parties are declared vidicated.

Dr. Woodson was called in and informed of the verdict. He thanked the board for his vindication, and he then stated that he considered it for the best interests of the institution and himself that he sever his connection with it. His formal resignation was tendered at once. The board accepted the resignation, effective July 1. It was announced that the appointment of a successor to Dr. Woodson would be taken up at some later date.

The board then announced the appointment of Thomas R. Bretz, of this city, to succeed Frank Owens. Bretz is a clothing salesman, and has been active in democratic politics for many years. Mrs. Elizabeth Eddy, of Excelsior Springs, was named as matron to succeed Mrs. Effie Evans, who resigned several weeks ago. Mrs. Eddy was formerly connected with the institution.

The vacancy caused by the resignation of Dr. Ben H. Smith as assistant physician, was filled by the appointment of Dr. W. E. McKinney, of Denver, Mo.

Dr. Woodson said that he had no statement to make for the public. He said he was satisfied and his demeanor indicated that such was the case. He was more cheerful than at any time during the past two weeks and the members of his family were also in good spirits.

Dr. T. E. Graham, of Albany, Mo., is mentioned as the probable successor of Dr. Woodson.

The members of the board left for their homes this morning.

SEDALIA BOY RETIRES

Walter Bates and "Billy" Roach Pass Up Pepper.

Teddy Peppers, who has battled his way into public favor in this vicinity, is placed in a similar positon to that famous old spear champion, Alexander, says the Kansas City Star of Friday. As a matter of fact Teddy hits too hard and in order to secure any matches in the future he will have to agree to race under wraps. Peppers was matched to fight "Billy" Roach Sunday. "Billy" discovered that he had a sick aunt in Ireland and sailed immediately for Sedalia, Mo. This left Theodore matchless. But the sturdy little Greek wasn't discouraged. He said: "If I can't fight a man in my class trot out a light weight."

This defi was aimed at Walter Bates, who fights best at 133 pounds. Peppers can do battle at 120 pounds ringside. Bates didn't appear particularly anxious to match wallops with Teddy, but his manager said that he could be induced to mingle with the Greek providing that he, Bates, should receive the big end of the purse, win, lose or draw. He also insisted that the referee should call the bout a draw if both boys were on their feet at the finish.

Peppers was willing to concede a dozen pounds to Bates, but he couldn't stand for the financial arrangement. His ultimatum was "winner take all."
